Steamer Leaves for New Orleans With 30 American Refugees From Towns Along East Coast

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(P)—
The government tonight increased its military efforts for the protection of American nations and property threatened by insurgents at Nicaraguan points.

Meanwhile, unofficial advices from Bluefields confirmed reports of 12 dead in combat north of Puerto Cabezas but official reports of American lives lost remained at nine, including one marine officer.

Navy department orders, at the request of the state department, concentrated marine aid upon Bluefields, Puerto Cabezas, and Cape Gracias a Dios.

Orders were issued at the request of Secretary Stimson, who conferred at length with President Hoover, directing the cruiser Memphis to Puerto Cabezas and the gunboat Sacramento to Bluefields. The Asheville already was at Puerto Cabezas.

C. A. Davis, a marine officer at Bluefields, reported to the Associated Press, that 12 were known dead in the insurgent attacks upon Puerto Cabezas. Only nine, however, were Americans.

The situation was fairly calm today,
Davis added, with civilians replacing the local military police who in turn enforced Guardia troops in the field.

An attack upon the Asheville, a village 65 miles northwest of Bluefields, prompted orders changing the course of the Sacramento, already en route from the Canal Zone to Puerto Cabezas, Bluefields.

The Memphis steamed from Guantamo, Cuba, Arrived at Puerto Cabezas, it was possible the Memphis might relieve the Asheville to permit it to go to Cape Gracias a Dios.

Although the state department head conferred with the chief executive for more than an hour, he told newspapers they had discussed the "beauti-ties of spring."

Tension Relaxed.
Tension at Puerto Cabezas was somewhat relaxed today since no insurgents had been seen in the vicinity for 48 hours. Nearly all American women and children, however, have been evacuated. The steamer Cebu has left with 30 American refugees for New Orleans.

Forty-five miles north of Puerto Cabezas a band of insurgents swooped down on Cape Gracias a Dios, on the Honduras border, and looted the village. They retired up the river with their plunder. American marine aviators dropped 14 bombs on the band.

The state department announced today that the gunboat Memphis was en route from Guantanamo, Cuba, to Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.

A Frightful Business Drain—

—Is the inability of those handling a firm's correspondence to write the right kind of a letter.

Every business executive can find out whether or not his firm's business letters are being written in a flabby, non-producing manner, by reading the feature "Business Building Letters," the first installment of which appears in Monday's Constitution.

It is a feature that can be of advantage to every business man, young or old.

Cheering Crowds Cop Attendance Cup While Crackers Capture Contest With Chattanooga

Above are scenes from Spiller field, where, before a record crowd of 17,201 the Crackers defeated the Chattanooga Lookouts 4 to 2 yesterday in the opening game of the Southern league season here. In the left panel is the huge overflow of school children and the more agile adult fans who swarmed over temporary bleachers along the right foul line or climbed the bank. In the center oval is Governor-elect Dick Russell pitching the first ball of the year with L. W. Robert, president of the Crackers, acting as umpire. At the right is a section of the grandstand and the Cracker dugout during the hoisting of the Stars and Stripes and the playing of the national anthem.

They tumbled and jammed into Spiller field yesterday to the number of 17,201 (cash), not counting the urchins who shined over the fence, the vast army of bluecoated policemen, the handsmen and the United States marines.

The Crackers, clad in gleaming home uniforms, swarmed out on the field and won the opening ball game, 4 to 2, from the gray-clad Lookouts from Chattanooga. The sun was beaming most of the time and even when it ducked behind the clouds the weather was as hot as June. It was one swell baseball debut, if we do say it.

When the turnstiles clicked out 17,201 it meant that Atlanta to all intents and purposes won the 1931 attendance trophy; no other Southern league city, save Chattanooga, has ever come close to that figure.

Nears League Record.
It exceeded the Chattanooga opening attendance figures by 158, which is a thin margin, but enough to save us all the embarrassment of being shown up by a much smaller city.

It lacked only 46 of equalling the Southern league record, set in 1924, when the Crackers opened their present park.

No special ballyhoo was attempted here, save the usual appeals through the press. Yet from noon all box seats were sold and fans were buying general admission seats from the

Organized Christianity Is Tool Of Capitalism, Says Speaker

BY B. R. CRISLER.

Organized Christianity at the present time is simply a tool in the hands of the moneyed interests, and its ethics are the ethics of capitalism for which it is only a convenient mouthpiece, Dr. Harry F. Ward, professor at the Union Theological Seminary, declared in a speech before members of the Atlanta Forum Association
Thursday night, given at the Studio Club on Forsyth street.

Dr. Ward is in Atlanta attending the meetings of the Religious Education Association, now being held at the Central Congregational church building on Ponce de Leon avenue.

With its vast machinery of propaganda, "big money" is now engaged in building up the same war psychology against Russia as was built up in England against Germany before the World War, and for the same reasons: fear of commercial competition, inspired by the grasping and mercenary spirit that permeates the present order, Dr. Ward said.

But the present capitalistic regime which would lead us into a conflict more disastrous than any history has yet recorded, if given its head, is on the decline, and the United States is facing a profound political upheaval unless conditions are modified in a more humane and more genuinely Christian direction, Dr. Ward asserts.

Among the breaches of civil liberty committed by arrogant plutocracy, said Dr. Ward, which he interprets as portents of its impending fall, are its efforts to suppress free speech by problems of industry lies in the religious Education Association meeting in the Central Congregational church building, at Ponce de Leon and Pied-

American Business Is Improving, Roger W. Babson Tells President

Roger W. Babson, business statistician, told President Hoover today he believed business had "turned the corner" and would gradually but slowly improve.

Babson said he based his statement on figures and not on hopes.

Car loadings for the past month, he said, have been larger than those of a year ago and employment figures from the labor department have shown an increase for the first time since 1928.

A few of the chain stores are showing better earnings not only over last month but over March a year ago, he said, adding certain railroads also have apparently reached the bottom in the decline in earnings.

Babson said his figures did not include the effect the widespread building campaign of the federal government would have on general industry.

He added he would not be surprised to see a shortage of labor in some lines before the year ended.

He said he did not look for a sharp rise in commodity prices and was not certain the decrease in those prices had ended. He added the last commodity price decline lasted more than 40 years.

The business statistician said he did not look for any great increase in business on the stock market but instead expected the speculative fever to turn to commodities.

"In my opinion," he said, "the public is fed up with stocks and the speculative fever will work itself out in some other way."

FLANDERS CHOICE WILL BE PUSHED, CAPITAL LEARNS

Recess Appointment for Rejected Georgian Likely To Be Requested by Mitchell's Aide.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Assistant United States Attorney-General Charles P. Sisson has made up his mind to recommend to President Hoover that G. Fred Flanders be given a recess appointment as United States marshal for the eastern district of Georgia, it was learned here today.

This action comes as a considerable surprise as the senate subcommittee, to which the original nomination made by the president was referred, refused even to hold hearings. This was due to a certain degree to the fact that there were only a few days left before adjournment, but mainly because the protests made were of such a character and made by men of such undoubted integrity and prominence that the expense of bringing witnesses here from Georgia was felt unwarranted.

One member of the subcommittee said to The Constitution correspondent immediately after the committee meeting in which the case was discussed:

"The charges made were of such a serious character and made by such reputable men, that we considered that it would be the most kindly thing to do to grant a recess appointment."

RUTHERFORD SAYS WET CANNOT WIN

Writes Shouse G. O. P. Is Making Effort To Force Democrats To Split.

FORSYTH, Ga., April 16.—Congressman Samuel Rutherford today revealed a copy of a letter sent to Joett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic national committee, in which he said that "it is very evident to me that the republican party is trying to force the democratic party to make the wet question a national issue in order to divide the people and thereby lessen the chance of electing a democratic president and vice president." Rutherford said he does not think a wet candidate can be elected.

The letter, which was in reply to a request from Mr. Shouse for an expression on pending campaign issues, is as follows:

"While I am not opposed to a free and frank discussion of any issue confronting the democrats of the nation,
I do believe that it would be a fatal mistake for the democratic national committee to undertake in any wise to control party policies, as matters of this kind should be left for solution by the people."

MacDonald Government Gets Commons Confidence Vote

Bulk of Liberal Party Supports Labor Group in Defeating Baldwin's Censure Proposal
By 305 to 251

BY PHILIP H. MYRING.
LONDON, April 16.—(P)—Ramsay
MacDonald, with the bulk of the liberal party at his back, rode down the opposition once again tonight, when the house of commons defeated a conservative motion of censure by a vote of 305 to 251.

It was a good substantial majority of 54 votes, considerably more than the government has won in some of its previous tight places.

By that margin the house turned down Stanley Baldwin's motion to the effect that the labor government had not lived up to its campaign pledges of relief for the hundreds of thousands of unemployed.

Had he lost, Mr. MacDonald would have recommended to King George that the parliament be dissolved and a general election be called. That was the course he had indicated he would take before the vote. It would have been technically different from resign-

SCHOOL FINANCE METHODS SCORED

State Educational Crisis Laid to Allocating System by J. L. Yaden.

MACON, Ga., April 16.—(P)—J.
L. Yaden, of Moultrie, president of the Georgia Education Association, told the organization Thursday night that Georgia is confronted with "an educational crisis the like of which has probably never been experienced before in public school history, and certainly not in the past half century."

He laid blame for the situation he described on the method of financing educational institutions.

Yaden spoke at the opening session of the association's 68th annual convention.

Guy H. Wells, Statesboro, Ga., president of the South Georgia Teachers' College, was the only nominee for the office of president of the association to succeed Yaden. The officers were nominated last tonight. Elections have been set for tomorrow.
Wells served as vice president of the association last year.

Nominees to succeed Wells were M.
R. Little, superintendent of Jefferson county schools, Louisville, Ga., and J. E. Mathis, superintendent of the Americas schools.

E. G. Elean, superintendent of Bainbridge school, was unopposed in the nominations for treasurer.

Nominees for three-year director were: Tom Gaines, superintendent

AMERICAN PLANS PACIFIC FLIGHT

TOKYO, April 16.—(P)—Thomas Ash, American flyer, announced today he expected to start a trans-Pacific solo flight from Japan late in May, planning to land either in Seattle or Tacoma within 40 hours. Ash said he would follow the great circle steamship route, and, since the flight would involve two nights in the air, he would select a moonlight night. The flyer said he had selected City of Tacoma, a plane brought last year by Harold J. Bromley, a projected trans-Pacific flight which never materialized. He said the name of the plane would be changed to the Pacific at the suggestion of its owner, John Buffel, Tacoma capitalist. Ash plans to start his flight from Sabishiro beach, Aomori prefecture where Bromley made a start.

BISHOP CANDLER ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, who has been confined for the past two months to Emory University hospital, suffering from complications which set in following an attack of influenza, will be removed to his home today, attending physicians stated Thursday.

Improvement in the bishop's condition has been so marked that he is now able to be out of bed for short periods of time, and doctors are convinced that his convalescence at home will be rapid.

SLICED LOAF of BREAD

(Double Wrapped—Sealed Air Tight)

This New Loaf is baked in our own Bakery. For your convenience it is SLICED—a decided step forward in the baking industry. It is delivered Fresh twice daily in our Atlanta Stores and once daily out of Atlanta.

This new FRESH SLICED LOAF is now being offered in a temporary "Name-It" wrapper. You do not have to buy a loaf to submit a name and slogan—in fact, you do not have to buy anything—but you can BEST select a suitable name and slogan after you know the merits of this bread by its use on your table.

WE ARE PROUD OF THIS NEW SLICED LOAF
Why? Because it is so baked and so wrapped as to remain deliciously fresh from the first slice right through to the last. Sliced bread makes better sandwiches and toast because it is uniform.

Time, trouble and inconvenience is saved the housewife. Once you have used it you will appreciate the sliced uniformity, the value and convenience in this excellent loaf.

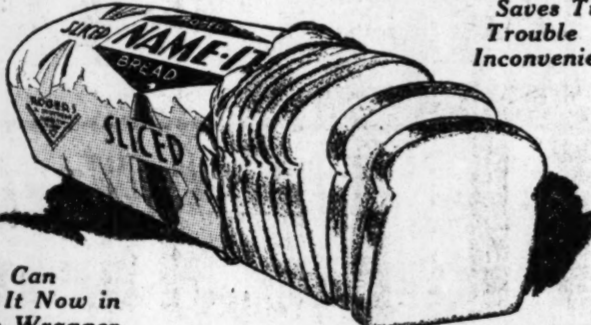

The formula of this new SLICED LOAF has been thoughtfully developed by our master baker, with years' of experience behind him. In it he has carefully combined the highest grade of bread-making materials. In it is used the highest grade of flour, the best butter, the purest milk, the sweetest honey, and all the other combinations of excellent ingredients to make a perfect loaf.

You Can Get It Now in This Wrapper

Saves Time, Trouble and Inconvenience

How to Send in Name and Slogan

All suggested names and slogans must be mailed in on a special card, secured at any Rogers store. No names considered unless on this card. Written letters enclosing name and slogan will not be considered.

Only one name and slogan will be considered from each person, but every member of the family can submit a name and slogan if they desire.

What Is Wanted

To give you a better idea—by an appropriate name for this sliced loaf of bread, is meant some short, catchy word, or perhaps two words, or a combination or a coined word—a name not now in use, and that can be copyrighted. With every name must be sent a short slogan of not more than ten words. For example:

NAME OF LOAF, "Superior."
SLOGAN, "Carefully Baked, Conveniently Sliced."
Do not use either of these. They are merely to give you an idea of what to send in.

It Costs You Nothing to Enter This Contest

Name First Consideration

The name for the loaf is the first consideration, and the judges will select the one they think best. If there is more than one of the same name selected, then the slogan will decide the winner. If more than one person should submit the same name and slogan, and it should be selected by the judges, then equal prizes (or a Chevrolet coach) will be given each contestant whose name and slogan were selected. The judges will be three well-known Atlantians, not interested in any way in Rogers stores, whose names will be announced later.

This Sliced Bread Now on Sale in All Rogers Stores

This new sliced loaf for which we want a name is now on sale in every Rogers store in the Southeast. In all Rogers stores there are special printed cards on which you must write your suggested name and slogan, also your name and address. Use these. No cards will be mailed from Atlanta headquarters on which to send in suggested names and slogans. Cards must be secured in a Rogers store, where all information is available. Get a card. Try a loaf of this sliced bread to see how nice and fresh it is—how temptingly it is baked—how conveniently it is sliced—so you can better suggest a good name and slogan for it.

Then send in your suggested name and slogan to

Atlanta and Fulton Leaders Voice Tributes to Ed H. Inman

Business, civic and political leaders Thursday paid tribute to the character and achievements of Edward H. Inman, whose unexpected death followed a sudden heart attack Wednesday. Superior court judges of Fulton county expressed their sense of bereavement in the following statements:

Judge Virlyn B. Moore: "By reason of Mr. Inman's wide and extensive business experience, as well as his honesty and integrity, Fulton county was very fortunate in having him as one of its commissioners in charge of financial affairs. He will be sorely missed as a public-minded citizen, a conscientious official, and as a friend."

Judge E. D. Thomas: "Loss of Edward H. Inman comes as a distinct shock to the thousands of citizens of this county who admired him as a true first citizen. As a friend and as a public-spirited official, we mourn his death."

Judge E. E. Pomeroy: "Mr. Inman was one of the fairest, most just and conscientious of citizens and officials. He was a true leader of men and wherever he was known there will be great sorrow and a feeling of loss."

"The passing of Ed Inman is irreparable," said Frederic J. Baxton, prominent businessman and close friend of Mr. Inman.

John Carroll Payne, financial and civic leader, paid the following tribute: "We have lost, by the untimely death of our friend and fellow citizen, one whose place will not be filled by mere substitution of another. His personality and judgment, sound advice and breadth of vision were of service impossible to weigh. He possessed in high degree what is termed moral courage."

"Not only is the loss to the institution of which he was an executive a great one, but the loss personally of so lovable a character can never be adequately expressed," said John K. Ottley, president of the First National Bank.

Echoing the tribute already paid by Mayor James L. Key, former Mayor I. N. Ragdale stated: "Atlanta's loss in Mr. Inman's death is a deplorable one. While serving with him in council there was created an admiration for his devotion to city, state and nation, and for his interest in all things that would tend to make for the betterment of Atlanta."

"He was aggressive and sought at every turn to protect the best interests of Fulton county and the people he represented," said Walter C. Hendrix, chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners. "He had demonstrated an extraordinary capacity for public service in instances where he was not personally benefited."

"Ed Inman will be greatly missed," was the tribute of former Governor John M. Slaton.

Edwin F. Johnson, Fulton county tax receiver, said: "Mr. Inman's death is a deplorable and Atlanta and Fulton county have lost an excellent citizen."

A meeting of the county commission, called for Friday afternoon, was postponed on account of Mr. Inman's funeral and Judge John D. Humphries, chief justice of Fulton superior court, announced Thursday that all superior and city court judges would declare a recess during the hour of the funeral.

EDWARD H. INMAN FINAL RITES TODAY

W. E. Chapin, Hughes Spaulding and Jesse Draper, the board of governors of the Capital City Club, of which Mr. Inman was a member, has been appointed by Albert Thornton, vice president, acting in the absence of the president, Charles T. Nunnally, to serve as an honorary escort at the funeral.

Died at Home.

Mr. Inman, who was in his fiftieth year, suffered the fatal attack while at his office, discharging his usual duties, and died at 6:05 o'clock shortly after being removed to his home. His wife and son, Edward H. Inman, Jr., were at his bedside when death occurred. His other son, Hugh T. Inman, who was in Florida at the time, arrived in the city Thursday.

A member of one of Atlanta's most distinguished families Mr. Inman had attained great prominence in the business, civic and political life of the city. As a member of city council and afterwards as chairman of the finance committee of the county board of commissioners, Mr. Inman was instrumental in passing a number of effective reform measures, including the reduction in the salaries of Fulton county department heads made early this year. He was elected to the board to succeed the late Captain George M. Hope, having twice served in city council, in 1915-16 and later in 1924-25.

A native Atlantan, son of the late Hugh Theodore and Margaret Josephine Inman, he attended the public schools here and later was graduated from Princeton University with the bachelor of arts degree. He was married to Mrs. Emily MacDougald, of Columbus, on June 19, 1901. Soon after graduation Mr. Inman

TWO OIL BLAZES TAKE FOUR LIVES

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, April 16.—(AP)—R. K. Krull, who early today remained in the blazing inferno of the Panhandle Refinery cracking plant to cut off the oil supply, died early tonight, the third victim of a blast which tore away the top of the treatment tower and scattered liquid fire to threaten the entire plant and 15 other lives.

O. R. Walker and J. A. Horne, trapped with Krull in the receiving room just below the tower, died in a hospital four hours after the terrific explosion enveloped the equipment in flames.

O. B. Males, plant superintendent, and Lawrence Worthen, operator's assistant, also were injured slightly.

KILGORE, Texas, April 16.—(AP)—Joe Lamb, 25, was dead tonight and M. J. Pendleton and M. H. Pettaway were in hospitals in serious conditions from burns suffered early today in an explosion and fire at a Humble Oil Company camp three miles west of here.

Sparks from the backfire of an automobile were believed to have ignited a gas pocket, the explosion of which in turn ignited oil in several storage tanks. Company employees said later today the fire was confined to three tanks and it was soon extinguished.

R. L. Lamp, father of the youth, was prostrated with grief. Recognition, Mrs. Lamb, the youth's mother, arrived during the morning without having learned of her son's death. Pendleton and Pettaway were taken to a hospital at Henderson.

became connected with the cotton brokerage firm of Inman, Smith & Company, subsequently known as Inman & Howard, one of the largest firms of its kind in the south. He served as president of the Kimball House Company, vice president of the Atlanta Woolen Mills, and director of the Trust Company of Georgia, the Atlanta Ice & Coal Company and the First National bank. He was prominent in the city's social life, being a past president of the Capital City Club and a member of the Piedmont Driving Club. He was an active member of the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Inman was one of the first citizens in Atlanta to own an automobile and was an enthusiast in the early days of motoring, taking part in many hill climbs, tours and other contests. In association with Frank Steinhauser, a year-and-a-half ago, he formed the first local automobile agency, representing the Cadillac Company.

Unable to enlist for active service during the World War, Mr. Inman was chosen one of three to handle the distribution of cotton between England and America for the war industries board. He also served as a "dollar-a-year" man on the war finance corporation.

Besides his wife and two sons, Mr. Inman is survived by three grandchildren, Hugh, Samuel and Mildred Inman, and two sisters, Mrs. John W. Grant and Mrs. Hugh Richardson.

FOREIGN TRADE BANK PLANS ARE COMPLETED

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Plans have been completed, it was reported in Wall Street today, for the establishment of a bank to finance foreign trade and which will be backed by some of the largest American manufacturers and exporters.

The institution will be unique in the banking world and is expected to start business soon, operating under a charter from the federal reserve board. It is expected to have capital funds of approximately $10,000,000.

The Penrod Corporation Holding Company, affiliated with the Pennsylvania railroad, are mentioned in reports as being among the American concerns interested in the bank. Several foreign banks are expected to participate, including the Comptoir d'Escompte de Berlin; the Hungarian Discount and Exchange Bank of Budapest; the Lower Austrian Discount Company, of Vienna, and the Comptoir d'Escompte de Geneve, Geneva, Switzerland.

WICKERSHAM HITS CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Law Enforcement Officers Also Criticized by Commission Chairman.

CINCINNATI, April 16.—(AP)—Administration of criminal justice in the United States was criticized tonight by Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission, who blamed particularly "a public attitude toward law that encourages law breaking."

In his second public statement since the commission completed its prohibition report before the Cincinnati regional crime committee, Wickersham did not mention prohibition except indirectly.

"Where a tolerance of lawless conduct is developed among educated and prominent people," he said, "the axe has been laid at the root of the tree of social security."

Wickersham criticized law enforcement officers who he said stoop "to attain their ends by means of illegal as the acts they seek to punish or suppress."

He said a study of lawlessness among officials being made by the commission probably would show for the first time "this ugly side of our officialdom."

Wickersham said there had been also a harmful retrogression in the activities and positions of judges and prosecutors, a failure to reform methods of prison treatment, a lack of adequate probation and parole supervision, a failure to provide federal juvenile courts, and most of all a lack of criminal statistics necessary to institute the proper reforms in this system.

A report by the commission soon to be submitted to President Hoover, he said, will recommend a statistics division in the justice department, with a task later expanded under the census bureau.

"Abundant evidence has been spread before the American people for years past," Wickersham continued, "of the need of a thorough overhauling of our whole system of criminal justice. Every day furnishes examples of the absence of that wholesome respect for law which ought to be characteristic of a self-governing people."

Wickersham said commission studies revealed that "unemployment ranks high among the factors" which influence crime, and that a dollar wisely invested in child care may result in greater profit than $1,000 "spent on the machinery of criminal justice."

"The federal judicial system has no juvenile courts," he said, "nor any other modern human method of dealing with the increasing number of juvenile offenders against modern federal legislation."

Wickersham said investigations had suggested "the need of better check upon the prosecutor than is customarily applied." He added "too great a latitude was allowed judges in sentencing criminals."

"Obviously," he said, "a system which leaves the consequences of conviction so largely to uncontrolled judicial discretion is entirely unsatisfactory, and there is abundant evidence that much injustice results from it."

Wickersham also criticized parole methods applied in many instances at the earliest moment permissible by the statutes in order to cut down the growth of prison populations.

"From this practice," he said, "has grown up a conviction among prisoners that they are entitled to discharge as soon as the period of imprisonment has expired at which the parole board has power to release them. If a prisoner is confined beyond this time he considers himself aggrieved."

The "antics of jailer prison in Illinois," he said, had just such an origin.

JOHN N. GARNER SEEN AS CHOICE OF HOUSE

Democrats Appear Certain To Organize Lower Body
at Next Session.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(Special.)—As matters stand today it looks almost certain that the democrats will organize the national house of representatives. This would mean that through having a majority on the various committees of that body as well as being able to name the chairman they would be able to block practically any administration-backed legislation.

It also seems nearly definite that John N. Garner, of Texas, will be elected speaker to fill the vacancy made by the death of the late Nick Longworth.

There are a number of reasons why it will be most difficult to elect a republican speaker. One of these is the prohibition question. At the present time there are three G. O. P. members of the house being prominently suggested. One of these, however, Representative Fred A. Bennett, of Illinois, who will probably get the wet vote in the republican caucus, has no chance in face of the fact that his party will have a large majority of dries when congress meets in December and is hardly likely to name a speaker who favors the repeal of the 18th amendment.

John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, floor leader in the past session, is the leading candidate, but it is very doubtful if he can command all the votes of his party which at present has a nominal majority of only one. During the last days of the recent session he ran into plenty of trouble, besides which he is looked upon as an ultra conservative and it would surprise no one to see one or two progressives, elected as republicans, desert him if he should be named in caucus.

Mr. Tilson's chief opponent is Bert Snell, of New York, chairman of the rules committee. As a party nominee he would be almost sure to lose several votes from the so-called oil states. For about the last six weeks of the recent session the independent oil producers of the country held meeting after meeting in this city at which they demanded that something be done to cut down the imports of crude oil and its derivatives. At one stage of the game they seemed fairly certain of getting action, but this was balked in great part by the refusal of Mr. Snell to bring out a special rule from his committee which would bring the matter to a vote.

To say that these oil men were angry is using the mildest of language, for they denounced Snell in the most bitter terms, also bringing in the name of the late speaker and declaring that they had been double-crossed and betrayed. At that time, several republican members from Kansas and Oklahoma stated flatly that they would be against Longworth for speaker on this account. And the feeling against Snell was even more intense.

On the other hand, Mr. Garner would have practically no opposition in his own party, where he is very popular. If he should be able to gain just one or two votes from the opposition, the fight would be over.

There is one more factor, however, that may enter into the situation, this being that national democratic leaders would rather see a republican controlled house session preceding the election. They believe that no matter what legislation is passed, little can be done to restore the confidence of the people in the republican administration and would be glad to see it dig its own grave without the democratic assistance.

This is more than counterbalanced through the fact that there is some very nice patronage concerned. Each committee chairman is allowed to select at least one additional clerk for his committee, while the important bodies have as many as half a dozen. The chairman also have additional office room which allows them some privacy, and can pigeon-hole legislation which their constituents object to and advance that which they favor. Hence the democratic members are very likely to organize the house if they can, and they probably will.

Mrs. Nicholson Challenges Mrs. Sabin to Liquor Debate

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—A challenge for a prohibition debate came today from the leader of a women's dry organization as an aftermath to the meetings here this week of anti-prohibition and prohibition women advocates.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, chairman of the Women's National Democratic Law Enforcement League, invited Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, to meet her in debate "if you are honest and sincere in what you ask for the millions in America." Mrs. Sabin's organization yesterday ended its meeting with a White House call.

In her challenge, the democratic woman prohibitionist said: "No one could see your meetings in Washington and not be impressed with the number of women of wealth present. May we not ask you how many of these have felt the pinch of poverty that goes with liquor or who will be the victims if the saloon or any other place where liquor is openly dispensed, comes back?

"Are we not right in saying that it is not the protected woman of wealth but the women who toil who will suffer should the old conditions return: the wives of laboring men, the mothers of little children who have no millions to separate them from the devastation liquor brings to the home?"

"If you are honest and sincere in what you ask for the millions in America, will you debate this question with me in Washington at your convenience?"

Informed of the challenge, Mrs. Sabin responded: "I'm so sorry I didn't get it in time. I would have been delighted to do it."

Friends said they would be surprised if the leader of the anti-prohibition women declined or ignored the invitation if Mrs. Nicholson made it direct to Mrs. Sabin.

Cripple Pleads Guilty To Robbery of Bank
DEQUEEN, Ark., April 16.—(AP) Charles Tobin, 40, a cripple, pleaded guilty today to robbery of the First National bank here four months ago and was sentenced by Circuit Judge E. P. Steel to seven years' imprisonment. Sentence was suspended until August and Tobin was permitted to remain at liberty under $20,000 bond.

PANTAGES AWAITS TRIAL BEFORE JURY

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 16.—(AP) Alexander Pantages and four co-defendants were held today for trial in superior court on charges that they had subjected girls of high school age to acts of immorality.

A justice court yesterday ordered the wealthy theater owner and his alleged associates tried after hearing the testimony of Miss Lydia Nitto and Miss Helen Livingston.

The decision marked the second time within 18 months that Pantages has been held for trial because of alleged crimes against young women. In October, 1928, he was convicted in Los Angeles of assaulting Eunice Pringle, co-ed dancer. He has been granted a new trial and is at liberty under bond of $100,000.

A year after his trial in Los Angeles, he was alleged in complaints filed here to have participated in a party at a fashionable San Diego hotel in which Miss Nitto and Miss Livingston allegedly were procured for them through a "vice bazar."

John P. Mills and Jesse Shreve, former business associates of Pantages, were alleged to have attended the party with him and will be tried at the same time. William Jobelmann, Pantages' former press agent, and Mrs. Olive Clark Day, accused of supplying the girls, complete the list of defendants. The defense offered no witnesses.

Mills faces similar charges in Los Angeles in another case and Jobelmann and Mrs. Day are accused there of operating a bureau in which young women were supplied to wealthy men. Pantages and his alleged associates expressed dismay at the decision, but indicated they believed they possessed evidence which would win them acquittal.

A charge of criminal attack against Shreve was dropped because Miss Livingston failed to testify he attacked her, but he still faces charges of conspiracy to violate the juvenile act.

RED CROSS ENDS ANNUAL MEETING

Directors Vote To Continue Financing From Private Subscriptions.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—The Red Cross closed its annual convention today after voting to continue its policy of financing relief operations with voluntary private subscriptions exclusive of federal funds.

A drive for a minimum of 7,000,000 adult members also was approved, to help replenish the organization's cash reserves which were drawn upon heavily in its drought relief program.

While resolutions adopted made no reference to the recent controversy over the organization's refusal to accept a $25,000,000 government drought appropriation, Chairman Payne, in a closing address, said all privately subscribed funds were used for actual assistance, whereas the federal donation would have involved charges for administration.

"But for the voluntary participation of Red Cross chapters in this world," he added, "the relief effort might have been as expensive as some in congress thought it ought to be." The finance resolution said the drought had made heavy inroads on the organization's reserves by loss of interest payments which it had been accustomed to receiving and that present revenues were not sufficient to finance its normal peacetime program. Hence, it was agreed that at least 7,000,000 adult members, compared with an existing membership of 4,100,000, should be made the goal of the next annual roll call. Some delegates regarded this figure excessive, but the resolution carried by an almost unanimous vote.

RED CROSS IS HELPING MANAGUA REFUGEES

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—The Red Cross not only helped Nicaragua earthquake victims at the scene of families of marine corps and navy assistance all the way to the homes of American refugees. These refugees, comprising 185 women and children, chiefly members of families of marine corps and navy men, are being disembarked at four American ports. A Red Cross announcement today said they were being met and provided with food, clothing, medical care, and if necessary, transportation to their homes.

Seventy-two already have landed, 67 at Norfolk Monday from the transport Chaumont and five yesterday at Brooklyn from the Chateau Thierry. The Grant, bearing 55 refugees, is due at Brooklyn early next week, while the Somme, with 53, is due at San Diego Sunday and at San Francisco two days later.

The domestic work is in charge of the war service section of the relief agency under Don C. Smith, national director.

Mabel Boll Weds.

PARIS, April 16.—(AP)—Mabel Boll, known as the Queen of Diamonds, was married here to the Polish Count Henri De Parceri with whom she had been seen frequently for the last six months. The couple left Paris immediately on a honeymoon for an unknown destination. The count was described as being in his thirties.

OFFICERS SEEK MAYOR'S SLAYER

Pinewood, S. C., Head Shot to Death Sitting in Home.

PINEWOOD, S. C., April 16.—(AP) Sumter county officers were without clues here tonight in the assassination of Mayor E. Clyde Geddings last night.

After an all-day investigation, they announced they were unable to say who shot Mayor Geddings or why he was shot. Geddings received a load of buckshot in his spine as he sat with his back to the street entrance of his home last night.

Chief of Police H. C. Scott said the mayor had been actively crusading against prohibition law violators and also had had trouble with negroes last Saturday.

When Geddings' mother and sister reached him immediately after the shooting he was dead. No one saw the assailant.

MAYOR'S SON IS HELD ON CHARGES OF GIRL

SALT LAKE CITY, April 16.—(AP) John Bowman, 18, son of Mayor John F. Bowman, of this city, and Roy Swartzfager, 18, were held without bail in the city jail today on a charge of criminally attacking a 16-year-old girl and violating the liquor laws. The youths are alleged to have held the girl prisoner in an apartment house for 14 hours. Police are seeking a third youth.

Continued Fine Weather Today, Says Forecast

More of the same brand of weather served up for the opening of the baseball season at Spiller field is promised today, C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, said Thursday.

Temperatures which ranged Thursday between 53 and 76 are expected to continue today with only slight prospect of showers.

United States reported Thursday that receipts for the year ending March 31, 1931, were $464,647, or $57,722 less than during the previous year.

"This decrease," a statement of the executive committee said, "made necessary the fifth successive reduction in appropriations, and a further curtailment in the church's home mission activities."

FIRST BILL PASSED BY FLORIDA SOLONS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 16.—(AP)—The first bill to receive approval of Florida's 1931 legislature was sent to the office of Governor Carlton today.

The measure was one to extend time for payment of 1930 taxes until June 15, 1931. It originally called for a limit of June 1 but was amended by the senate with house approval.

BIRMINGHAM WOMAN PREVENTS ROBBERY

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 16.—(AP)—Fighting off a would-be bandit single handed, Miss Elizabeth Barnes, 22, today averted a robbery of a downtown jewelry store. The bandit, who escaped, already had seized a tray of diamond rings, Miss Barnes said, when she stopped him and succeeded in regaining the jewels. Miss Barnes was alone in the jewelry company office at the time the bandit entered the store.

Noted Religious Leaders Address Meeting Here

operation, presided at Thursday night's session, when analyses of concrete economic and industrial situations were given.

Today's program includes talks this morning by Charles A. Ellwood, professor of sociology, Duke University, Durham, N. C., "The Philosophy of Protestantism in Its Relation to Industry," Edward L. Israel, rabbi of Har Sinai Congregation, Baltimore, "The Philosophy of Judaism in Its Relation to Industry," and R. A. McGowan, assistant director, department of social action, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, "The Philosophy of Catholicism in Its Relation to Industry."

A business meeting will be held at 2 this afternoon and sectional meetings will continue at 3 o'clock. The general session at 7:30 tonight will feature addresses on "Our Challenge," by Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Chicago Sinai Congregation; Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, Washington, and Arthur E. Holt, professor of social ethics, Chicago Theological Seminary.

Businessmen of this country are worried, but they are not yet convinced that any change in the economic order is necessary, or that it would be for the welfare of the country at large, said P. H. Callahan, of Louisville, Ky., manufacturer, Thursday night in speaking on the subject: "Analysis of Concrete Economic and Industrial Situations."

The four or five-day week cannot be effective if employers only are to suffer during the economic depression, which they would do if obliged to pay a full week's wages, said Mr. Callahan. He added that the tariff had little to do with the depression, and that the gold standard and scarcity of gold likewise had nothing to do with the misfortune. While 75 per cent of the profits of industry, finance and transportation are now going to 25 per cent of the citizens, if the 75 per cent of the profits were distributed to 75 per cent of the people, the purchasing power would have been extended and prosperity of a few years ago would still be here, he said.

C. D. Barr, vice president of the American Cast Iron Pipe Company, who was also scheduled to speak Thursday night, was unable to be present. His paper, which described the operation of his company's manufacturing plant under the "Eagan Plan," was read by A. J. Speer, of the same organization.

"I believe the soul of man today is hungering for religion as never before in history," Mr. Edgerton said. "It cannot and never will be satisfied with a diet whose chief substance is other than love. That is what industry needs and wants most from the church, and that is what the church can most helpfully give."

Deploable economic conditions now affecting all nations were derived from remote causes, chief among which were bigotry and buck passing, Mr. Edgerton said. The world has gotten into a very bad humor which makes more difficult the processes of broad, calm, unselfish consideration, and in such circumstances religion, pure and undefiled, has its golden opportunity of all the ages, and that connection any education that is not religious in its nature is more of a liability to society than an asset, he said.

Industry is in the best humor for its own important part that it has ever been in, as through the past several years the number of those in industry who regard their obligations as more important than their rights has been increasing very hopefully, Mr. Edgerton said.

The depression has given institutions of higher education an opportunity to serve the nation in helping to discover a way out of the present economic dilemma, said Mr. Matherly. Universities have greatly contributed to success of industrialism, but they have made few or no contributions to the indefinite extension of industrialism, he said. Although they have turned out thousands of graduates, they have not produced a sufficient number of socially minded economic leaders to save the United States from the present economic disaster, he added. "If industrial civilization is to be maintained, comprehensive planning of an international character is imperative, and colleges and universities should contribute in a large and comprehensive way."

Visitors to the convention have been attracted in great numbers by the elaborate book displays of leading publishing firms arranged by booths in the church annex. Over a dozen displays of late and instructive works have been provided.

the absurd device of clubbing and jailing a few harmless communists whose arguments, if the police allowed them to be presented, would die of sheer inanity. But by the use of clubs and jails plutocracy succeeds only in martyring its victims; converting harmless "enemies" into dangerous messiahs whose sufferings must eventually fan into a blaze the terrible embers of public resentment, according to Dr. Ward.

Following his address, Dr. Ward answered a number of questions from the floor and in the course of his remarks stated that the racketeer, the "big shot" of organized crime, was simply a "big business" monopolist, working outside the law, a counterpart of the steel, the oil, or the public utilities executive, crushing out competition with machine guns instead of cut prices, bribes, intimidation, and similar devices.

The speaker was introduced by M. G. Evans, president of the forum association.

MARINE WITHDRAWAL PLANS ARE UNALTERED
WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—Plans for withdrawing American marines from Nicaragua will not be altered as the result of insurgent activities or the recent earthquake at Managua.

Secretary Stimson today approved a schedule that will withdraw all marines now on combat duty in Nicaragua not later than June 3. This will leave not more than 500 of the force of 5,000 in Nicaragua in January, 1929.

McDONALD GETS CONFIDENCE VOTE

since the labor government took office nearly two years ago.

The house was tensed and expectant as Mr. Baldwin began the debate and the members cheered both him and Tom Johnston, the new lord privy seal, who has charge of the government's unemployment relief program. Mr. Johnston replied for the government to Mr. Baldwin's speech.

Lady Astor's enthusiasm carried her so far that the speaker arrested a sharp rebuke, warning the Virginia lady against continued interruptions. When Mr. Johnston had finished the liberals rose, David Lloyd George among them, and trooped out of the chamber to consider their course of action.

The liberals were out only a few minutes, and when they came back word ran along the benches that the bulk of the party had decided to vote with the government.

The tension ebbed abruptly, and, with the ultimate outcome apparently assured, the members sat back to listen to Lloyd George, who said that in the brief time since his appointment Mr. Johnston could have done no more to carry out the unemployment program.

Thirty-three liberals voted with the government in this division; ten were against it, and five abstained.

On the labor side seven members forming Sir Oswald Mosley's "new party" abstained from voting. Several independents voted with the government.

The regular laborites were so well disciplined for this division that every member either voted or was paired except one who missed his train and was absent.

Consequently labor mustered 293 votes against the opposition combination of 238 conservatives, 10 liberals and 3 independents. Thus, even without the assistance of the liberals they outnumbered the opposition by 12 votes.

SPEECH BY YOUNG SCOT SAVES McDONALD REGIME
BY FRANK K. KING.
LONDON, April 16.—(AP)—Tom Johnston, a bold young Scot from Dumbartonshire, who bears the highly decorative title of "lord privy seal," tonight saved the life of Ramsay MacDonald's labor government.

His speech in the house answering Stanley Baldwin's motion of censure rallied the straggling liberal ranks and assured the government's narrow majority in the critical vote.

He was appointed to the cabinet less than a month ago and at 41 he is a strapping among the elderly veterans of the government. But he handled this situation with such easy confidence that he promises to rank with the leading figures of the British labor movement.

Leaning against a high desk, he answered the conservative attack with dignified exposition and argument not unlike his analysis of some of the incidents in Scottish history. Not long ago he was bold enough to call Robert the Bruce a "feudal bully" and to assert that he famous legend about Bruce and the spider was untrue.

Today he showed not the slightest fear that the government was in danger. He simply outlined the unemployment relief plans proposed and operating, explained how 170,000,000 pounds sterling is being spent to provide jobs, took a few jabs at unemployment figures in the United States, Germany and France, concluded with an eloquent little peroration and let it go at that.

He was deadly serious throughout, but Jack Jones, the "licensed jester" of the house, interrupted once while Johnston was quoting unemployment figures.

"There's one more now," he cried. "Alonso."

The liberals marched out to consider their course of action after Johnston had finished, and when they came back David Lloyd George said Johnston "could not have done more in the time at his disposal since his appointment."

The liberal leader's speech became a lecture to Mr. MacDonald, adjuring the prime minister to give Johnston every possible assistance. "He is the one man I have come across who is not afraid of departmental officials," said Mr. Lloyd George.

ONE DEAD, 2 HURT IN PISTOL BATTLE

Mystery Man Victim of Gun Duel on Street of Ohio Town.

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio, April 16.—(AP)—Willis Miller, 25, known as "Billy the Killer," stepped into a gun battle here today and made good his boast that he couldn't be captured alive.

He fell after firing one shot from a revolver at two officers who attempted to arrest him and three companions as bank robber suspects and died with a bullet in his abdomen while a battle raged about him.

Another gunman, said by police to be Clarence Saunders, of Kansas City, Mo., emptied his gun at the policemen, critically wounding one of them and escaped in an automobile.

Two girl companions were captured. One of them was picked up near the dead man. A stray shot punctured her skull but physicians said she may recover. Her identity was uncertain although she gave her name as Beulah Baird, 20, of Kansas City.

The other girl was said to be Ruth Saunders, 23, wife of the escaped bandit. She is believed to be a sister of the Baird girl.

Since he killed his brother, Joseph Miller, in Pennsylvania, September 18, 1925, Miller has been sought throughout the middle west as an escaped convict, bank bandit, holdup artist and "all around" bad man. He was acquitted of the charge of slaying his brother on a claim of self-defense.

JUDGE M. J. WADE DIES ON COAST

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—(AP)—United States District Judge Martin J. Wade, Iowa City, Iowa, died here tonight from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered six weeks ago.

He was born in Burlington, Vt., in 1861. He was appointed to the federal bench of the southern Iowa district in 1915.

left over from the dictatorship of General Primo De Rivera, and returning the country to the criminal statutes existing before 1923, until a republican code can be prepared.

Provisional President Niceto Alcala Zamora and Colonel Francisco Macia, provisional head of the Catalonian republic, issued statements through the Associated Press. Senor Alcala conveyed his desire for friendship with the people of the Americas and Colonel Macia expressed his cordiality toward the Spanish republic.

The government has not yet fixed the dates for the election designed to form a parliamentary cortes and set up a permanent ministry. Whether it will be held in June or later remains to be decided.

Recognition Announced.
Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux announced that Mexico and Uruguay had recognized the new republic and that Argentina shortly would do likewise. Meanwhile, several Spanish ambassadors in foreign capitals had resigned and their successors were being appointed.

Marcelino Domingo, new minister of education, said that Spanish universities closed since the Easter holidays because of student disorders, would reopen Monday.

A denial of published reports that he issued a statement unfavorable to the government was made by Count De Romanones, resigned secretary of state.

"It is the duty of everyone to work for the good of Spain now regardless of government," he said.

With regard to reports that the Spanish peseta had lost value in the world's markets, Minister of Finance Indalecio Prieto said:

"I cannot explain it as Spanish economy is all right and is preparing for even better times. Spain will work on a modest scale but with efficiency, reflecting economy throughout. The peseta will improve as it should."

Supporters of the old order continued to take leave of their native land and banished republicans still crossed the frontiers to fill their places. Resignations of royalist office holders and army chiefs poured in and good republicans were appointed in their stead.

The public has shown no vindictiveness with regard to the royal palaces or monarchist property. The government has appealed to everyone to be law-abiding and its wishes have been observed. The king's personal quarters have not yet been entered by any republican official and remain in charge of servants until he indicates what disposition he wishes made of his possessions.

PARIS, April 15.—(AP)—Victoria, exiled queen of Spain, tonight received the sympathy and embraces of Elizabeth, reigning queen of the Belgians, in a suite in the Hotel Meurice near the Place de la Concorde, where a former queen of France was quitted.

The meeting between Victoria and Elizabeth, who hurried here from Brussels today to comfort her throneless friend, was dramatic and intense. They embraced and kissed, but there were no tears.

"It was terrible," the Spanish queen said, "but the king has not abdicated. He simply gave over his powers. If he had not done that—oh, what would have happened?"

Earlier in the day Victoria had been greeted by shouts of "Long live the queen!" when she arrived in Paris with members of her family. Admirers sent so many flowers to her hotel that an extra room had to be engaged for them. Hundreds of persons called to pay respects, including General Lasso, representing the president of France, and scores of aristocratic exiles from Russia.

When the Belgian queen arrived at the Meurice, Victoria was absent, having driven with a lady in waiting to the Norwegian legation, where she had tea. After her return she received the royal visitor in her suite and they remained together for an hour and a half.

The Spanish royal children, the Infanta Beatrice, Marie and Christina, and the Infante Don Jaime, later paid respects to Elizabeth, who then retired to her own suite for supper. She plans to return to her country tomorrow morning.

lona no important acts of violence had been reported.

REPUBLIC WILL PUBLISH
ALFONSO'S MANIFESTO

MADRID, April 16.—(AP)—The new republican government, which thus far has refused to give official publication to the farewell manifesto of Alfonso, is planning to issue it simultaneously with an answer to its claims by the government.

The following note on Alfonso's manifesto was issued today:

"The government does not desire to impede the publication of the manifesto despite the exceptional circumstances which are inherent to the birth of any political movement, which could justify its prohibition at this time. Nevertheless the provisional government is so sure of the loyalty to the new regime on the part of the entire nation and is so free from fear of monarchist reactions that it will not prevent the publication, but it believes that the manifesto should go together with notes refuting it so that the country may judge it freely."

PARIS WILDLY
ACCLAIMS KING

that old railway station has seen in many years. Fully 30,000 persons jammed the station and the great square on which it faces. They had been waiting there for hours to see the man who renounced his royal prerogatives to avert civil war among his people.

"Vive le roi!" the French cried, mingling their cheers with the "Viva el rey" of the Spanish loyalists.

No king who ever came into this haven of exiles ever was so enthusiastically acclaimed.

The police were powerless to hold this throng in check and Alfonso was almost crushed by the crowds which swept forward to greet him.

A wedge of police formed about the king and his party and literally pushed them into an automobile which darted away toward the hotel where Queen Victoria and five of their children awaited him. Someone whispered in the king ear and the monarch and his party were hurried away from the crowd through the back door used by customs officials. But when they emerged upon the sidewalk the crowd was already there.

Police pushed them back long enough for Alfonso to climb into the machine. Obviously overcome by emotion he sank back against the seat and closed his eyes as the car moved off behind a police escort.

All along the route to the hotel crowds cheered from the curb, automobile horns blared, flashlights boomed. When they reached the hotel another great crowd jammed the Rue Rivoli, but the king leaped from the car and hurried up to the royal apartments on the second floor to greet his family.

The impatient throng outside left off its cheering for a moment and began to cry, "On the balcony! On the balcony!" There was a long balcony from the royal suite overlooking the beautiful Tuileries garden.

For five minutes Alfonso resisted the appeal, but finally the great French window opened slowly and the king and queen, arm in arm, stepped out.

The crowd went wild. Then the royal couple moved slowly backward into the room and the window closed gently.

The crowd was still not satisfied and its numbers grew as those who had been at the railroad station two miles away arrived to take part in this new welcome.

A few tried to force their way into the hotel but the iron gates clanged shut in their faces.

It was nearly midnight but the crowd constantly grew. The Rue Rivoli and the Rue Castiglione were swelled with men and women arriving from the theaters in evening dress to mingle with those already there.

They cheered Alfonso in half a dozen languages.

One by one the lights in the royal suite were extinguished.

The man who had been king had gone to bed and the crowd gradually melted away.

Earlier Alfonso in France was pictured as still dreaming of sitting upon the Spanish throne of the Bourbons despite the political upheaval which made him an exile.

As the king's train was speeding toward Paris tonight and his despairing, disillusioned queen was waiting to embrace him, all France talked of the great drama which so poignantly

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting
Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonard's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Jacob's Pharmacy invites every Pile sufferer to try a bottle of HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if they do not get Piles in any form.—(adv.)

recalls their own history when kings and emperors reigned but gave way after terrible bloodshed to the republic.

Guided by tragic events in France and other nations, the Frenchmen who perhaps Alfonso fled through sentiments of humanity and to save his people from sanguinary civil war.

Merely "Suspended."

The opinion in Paris is that judicially speaking he has not abdicated but merely accepted a suspension of his royal powers.

As the basis for their belief, French observers pointed to the statement of the Duke of Miranda, head of the royal household, who said at Versailles this morning:

"King Alfonso awaits the forthcoming elections in June to settle the fate of the country. He will remain aloof until the people have decided the form of government they wish, and then will abide by their decision."

"He has merely abandoned power in order to avoid trouble or even civil war."

The monarch was believed to be optimistic that the Frenchmen would win in the elections, or at least that the Spanish people would accept a liberal, democratic monarchy and ask Alfonso to return as king.

Referring to the king's manifesto, observers believed it showed plainly that he himself considers he has not abdicated nor renounced his rights to the throne, though official pronouncements from Madrid on Tuesday insisted he had.

In his connection great importance is attached to the phraseology of the official act signed by the ministers of justice and foreign affairs in the last cabinet whereby Alfonso transferred his royal prerogatives.

Paris is the chosen refuge for the illustrious and near-greats of many nations. Former presidents of South American republics especially favor this city and kings, crowned and uncrowned, have ever loved it.

Friends of Alfonso recall that King Carol of Rumania flew from Paris to rescind his throne and suggest that Alfonso might well follow King Carol's precedent.

Charles, Bourbon king of France, abdicated in favor of his grandson, Count De Chambord, who never reigned, it was recalled, and France's last king, Louis Philippe, of the house of Orleans, stepped down in favor of the Count of Paris, whose descendant, Count De Guise, recently was wedded at Palermo, Sicily, to the Prince's daughter, Isabelle of Orleans and Brancaccio.

Our Dreams of Happiness

Some Are Rough, Some Are Smooth

Poor Ruth, So Easily Made Happy.

THIS quaint picture from an old illustrated Bible shows beautiful Ruth, daughter-in-law of Naomi, a good girl that would not leave her mother-in-law under any circumstances.

Keats speaks of "the sad heart of Ruth, when sick for home, she stood in tears amid the alien corn."

We like to think of her as the practical girl that went out to glean an ear of wheat, rye or barley here and there, to keep her mother from starving.

ABOVE we see her kneeling at the feet of old Boaz, owner of the field. She was a smart girl for those days. She slept on the threshing barn floor and kept the feet of old Boaz warm at night, holding them to her breast. He told his servants to let her glean all she wanted to, finally married her, and SHE owned the field when he died. It took little to make her happy.

SOME demand a great deal, e. g., the young gentleman described in verses by Donald Mack, printed in the middle of his editorial page by Cyrus H. K. Curtis:

A PRAYER.
Let me live!
I would stand alone, upon a mountain top, at dawn;
Or cling to the tiller of some sail-boat
While Hell breaks o'er the seas!
Give me a 'plane, that I may be alone in Space,
With God—
Let me wander over all the world;
Fill my youth with the joy of freedom.

Scholastic Merit Awards Won by 62 Tech Students

Twenty Atlantans Among Group Receiving Honors at Annual Exercises.

Scholastic merit awards were won by 62 Georgia Tech students in the annual honor day exercises, presided over by President M. L. Brittain, and held in the school auditorium Thursday. Of this number 20 were received by students whose homes are in Atlanta.

In delivering the honor day address the Rev. N. R. H. Moore, pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal church, emphasized the challenge which modern civilization presents to the world of thought and characterized the realm of the mind as the only field in which man may yet look forward to advancement.

C. M. Wither, blind freshman student, was warmly praised for his remarkable scholastic achievement in trying with B. L. Mattingly, also of Atlanta, for highest honors in his class, both men receiving Phi Eta Sigma freshman class honor cups; while H. W. Spahr, of Louisville, Ky., received at the hands of Professor H. W. Mason, head of the automotive engineering department, a cup emblematic of the highest scholarship average throughout his collegiate career. Spahr is a senior.

The Tau Beta Phi for the highest average of the year among sophomore students of the engineering school went to S. H. Wilkinson, of Corinth, Miss., while W. L. Averett, Atlanta, received the Beta Phi sophomore chemical engineering trophy.

Ivan Allen, well-known Atlanta businessman and long a friend of education, personally awarded to Edward Smith, Atlanta, the freshman commerce cup, which he had offered for competition; while the sophomore commerce award, a gift of the Beta Gamma Sigma fraternity, was won by A. T. Kouskalis, of Savannah. The senior textile medal offered by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers became the property of V. M. Mitchell, of Summerville, Ga.

Beta Kappa had the highest scholastic average of any Tech fraternity for the year, and, as such, received from Earl Dunlap, president of the student body, the fraternity scholastic cup. Varney A. Graves, with the highest average in the school for his entire course in the co-operative engineering department, won the trophy offered by the Brierley Society.

Dr. Brittain then presented 25 gold

Wife Follows Husband Into Religious Life

BALTIMORE, April 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Beatrice Oswald, wife of Alfred Oswald, Brazilian pianist, who for eight years was a member of the faculty of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, was invested with the habit of a Carmelite nun today at a ceremony that was believed to have few precedents.

Her husband, made a Jesuit lay brother a few weeks ago, was permitted to attend the ceremony, held in the little chapel of the Carmelite convent.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Oswald, dressed as a bride and accompanied by her husband, walked from the convent entrance to the chapel. A flower girl was her only attendant.

Scores of friends, including some of the leading figures in the musical life of the city, occupied the chapel and lined the sidewalk outside.

PROHIBITION IS AID TO BUSINESS—FORD

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Prohibition, Henry Ford said in answer to a questionnaire made public today, has been a great benefit to business and labor.

The Detroit manufacturer said also that the first effect of the return of legalized liquor would be widespread reduction of wages "due to the demoralization of labor which liquor always causes." That is, he qualified, if the "impossible" should occur.

"Big business had more to do with prohibition enforcement today than any other agency," Ford said, because business began to require sobriety among employees before prohibition was thought possible. The questions were put to him by the alcohol information committee.

His company, the motor manufacturer said, first raised its minimum wage, "then undertook to insure the sober use of it."

Business has been aided vastly by enactment of the Volstead act, he declared, explaining:

"The law gives us a weapon. We no longer are left to ourselves in trying to get decent conditions for families but have the support of the government. If officials appointed to enforce prohibition were more successful it would be of great benefit all around."

"No one can question," Ford said in reply to another question, "the great increase in general business. The liquor business made money for a very few—took money and money-making ability from the rest of the country."

The present depression, he predicted, will result in more sober safeguards for the future because people are thinking soberly.

SINCLAIR-PRairie OIL MERGER AGAIN TALKED

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Wall Street is again talking of a possible merger of affiliation of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

This $800,000,000 combine, as based on assets shown in latest balance sheets, has been on and off the fire for some time. It was announced last autumn that the deal was definitely off, owing to inability to agree on terms. Since then there has been no official intimation of a resumption of negotiations.

The election of several new directors to the board of Prairie this week gives rise to renewed speculation over the possibility of a closer alignment, or possibly a consolidation.

It was only last September that Sinclair sold its interest in Sinclair pipe line and Sinclair crude oil purchasing companies for $2,500,000 and it was felt at that time that this sale was preparatory to a merger with Prairie. The properties have not yet been replaced by other acquisitions.

Reports that the Sinclair Company is likely to expand through the acquisition of other companies has had semi-official but general confirmation for some months past. The same may be said of Cities Service.

NEGRO'S FOOT CRUSHED UNDER FREIGHT TRAIN

His left foot crushed when attempting to board a moving freight train early Thursday morning, Brady Holmes, negro, of 208 Hubbard street, was rushed to Grady hospital, where doctors found it necessary to amputate. The accident was said to have occurred about 5:30 a. m. at the McDaniel street railway crossing.

HOOVER ADDRESS PLAYED BY WALSH

Revival of Democratic- Insurgent Coalition Seen in Statement.

BY WILLIAM C. MURPHY, JR.,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(UP)—A revival of the democratic-insurgent coalition which hampered the administration during the Hawley-Smoot tariff controversy, was visualized here today when the democratic national committee accepted the challenge voiced by President Hoover's denunciation of the so-called "dole" in his speech before the American Red Cross a few days ago.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, Montana, in a statement distributed by the committee, asserted that the president's sense of values, spiritual and otherwise, appears out of balance. Walsh echoed some of the criticisms of Mr. Hoover's speech made previously by Senator Robert M. La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, one of the insurgent leaders.

It was learned that the democrats are convinced enough that the present depression and unemployment will be prolonged through the coming winter to make the question of direct federal aid a live political issue, whether that issue is attractive to them or not. Operating on the theory that the financial resources of local communities, which bore the brunt of relief work during the past winter, will be insufficient to carry through the coming winter, some democrats have taken the view that direct federal aid will be needed. Hence they take the view it is good political strategy for their party to assume an aggressive attitude on this issue and put the administration on the defensive.

Hint at Strategy.

Walsh hinted at this strategy today, saying:

"The president made a moving defense before the Red Cross convention a few days ago of his opposition to an appropriation from the treasury to that organization to help it out in the tremendous task it undertook to feed the hungry and clothe the naked during the winter. It was a great preservation of spiritual values, he thought, that reliance was placed upon the charity inclined, though themselves needy, and that the niggardly, though over-rich, were compelled through taxation to contribute."

Recalling that Mr. Hoover, when he took charge of Belgian relief work, insisted upon "staggering sums" from the governments of France and Great Britain, Walsh continued:

"The judgment of the world at that time was that the spiritual values treasured by the people of Great Britain and France had been preserved rather than destroyed by this course, but perhaps what is one man's meat is another man's poison. Spiritual values are maintained on one side of the Atlantic by a course which destroys them on the other."

Walsh also cited the American government's contribution of $100,000,000 in 1919 to feed starving populations in Europe during the 1922 campaign, and the $200,000,000 appropriation in 1921 for Russian relief.

Democratic Bid Seen.

Those inclined to speculate as to political motives saw in today's move a democratic bid for support from the populous centers of industrial states in the 1932 campaign, under assumption that demands for relief during the next winter will come from the large cities where the concentration of unemployed is greatest.

To the accompaniment of these political repercussions to the president's speech at his opening session, the Red Cross convention ended today with an appeal for a larger membership in order to permit continuation of its normal activities despite the drain imposed by drought relief work.

Before adjourning the convention recommended that the next annual meeting be held in Washington because of the George Washington bicentennial celebration scheduled for next year, and in Chicago, where the world's fair is to be held, the following year.

PROHIBITION IS AID TO BUSINESS—FORD

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Prohibition, Henry Ford said in answer to a questionnaire made public today, has been a great benefit to business and labor.

The Detroit manufacturer said also that the first effect of the return of legalized liquor would be widespread reduction of wages "due to the demoralization of labor which liquor always causes." That is, he qualified, if the "impossible" should occur.

"Big business had more to do with prohibition enforcement today than any other agency," Ford said, because business began to require sobriety among employees before prohibition was thought possible. The questions were put to him by the alcohol information committee.

His company, the motor manufacturer said, first raised its minimum wage, "then undertook to insure the sober use of it."

Business has been aided vastly by enactment of the Volstead act, he declared, explaining:

"The law gives us a weapon. We no longer are left to ourselves in trying to get decent conditions for families but have the support of the government. If officials appointed to enforce prohibition were more successful it would be of great benefit all around."

"No one can question," Ford said in reply to another question, "the great increase in general business. The liquor business made money for a very few—took money and money-making ability from the rest of the country."

The present depression, he predicted, will result in more sober safeguards for the future because people are thinking soberly.

ROOSEVELT, SEABURY CONFERENCE ON PROBES

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16.—(AP)—Commissioner Samuel Seabury discussed his investigation of New York affairs with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today, neither indicating what effect the conference might have upon subsequent developments.

"Seabury merely told me about the case as far as it has gone," Mr. Roosevelt said. "It practically was what I have read in the newspapers. He did not say when he would complete it."

The busy investigator was smilingly non-committal. He spent more than an hour and a half with the governor, and rushed away to catch a New York train to continue his investigation of charges of incompetency against Thomas C. C. Crain, district attorney. With that out of the way he will commence working for the legislative committee which will take a legal look at New York affairs.

All Quiet on Dempsey Front; Divorce Suit Second Named

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—With divorce proceedings seemingly inevitable and the second named, all that remained today for the staging of the court battle between Estelle Taylor, of the movies, and Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight fist champion, was the fixing of the time and place.

Miss Taylor accepted Dempsey's recent challenge from Reno when her attorney, Joseph Scott, last night telegraphed her husband's lawyer, Robert E. Burns, that she was prepared to file suit in Los Angeles. The former titleholder had announced that he was establishing residence in Nevada with a similar idea.

The legal bout, if and when it is arranged, promises to be void of the sensational. Neither participant is anxious for that, they say, and the charges are expected to consist merely of mental cruelty.

As matters stood today, it appeared that the legal set-to would take place in Los Angeles provided Miss Taylor goes through with present plans, inasmuch as Dempsey must establish legal residence in Nevada before he can file suit there.

Attorneys for the estranged couple were expected to confer in the near future. In the meantime Dempsey has been on a fishing trip and Miss Taylor has continued plans here for an operatic career.

Ruth Hanna Silent On Future Course

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick returned today from a vacation in the southwest and continued to have "nothing to say" on politics, matrimony or any other controversial subjects.

"I don't mean to be rude," she told newspapermen with a disarming smile, "but I simply have nothing to say. I had a delightful vacation. I'm going to visit here a short while. Then I may go to Washington."

Mrs. McCormick was asked regarding her reported engagement to Congressman Albert H. Sims, of New Mexico. Again she had "nothing to say."

Asked for an opinion of Governor Emmerson's veto of the state liquor law repealer, she said she was taking no stand on any political subject and had "nothing to say" about it.

Jack's Next Wife?

With rumors of Jack Dempsey's divorce from Estelle Taylor rampant, gossip is linking the ex-champion's name with that of Mrs. Reginald R. Church, in whose company he has been seen on many occasions. Mrs. Church is pictured above as she appeared on her wedding day when she married Reginald Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., society man. She divorced him recently, at Reno, Nev.

RECEPTION HONORS JAPANESE PRINCE

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(UP)—Nearly 2,000 members of Washington officialdom and society paid their respects to Prince Takamatsu, brother of the emperor of Japan, and his bride at a formal reception in the Mayflower hotel here tonight.

The event was the largest and most colorful of many social occasions arranged for the imperial visitors during their visit to the capital while honeymooning around the world. Members of the cabinet, the supreme court, the diplomatic corps and of congress were the attenders.

MEMORIAL IS UNVEILED TO CIVIL WAR VETERAN

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—A marble tablet to Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles was unveiled today at a special service at the Washington cathedral.

The memorial to the Civil War veteran, Indian fighter and commander of United States forces in war with Spain, who died in 1925, was placed in the crypt by the National Society of the Daughters of the Loyal Legion.

CRIME MAGAZINE BAN IS ADVERSED

Ordinance Committee of Council Votes Down Proposed Censorship.

A proposal to outlaw all publications "extolling crime or telling how crimes may be committed" will go to council Monday with an adverse report of the ordinance committee. That body Thursday afternoon, without a dissenting vote, agreed to report adversely on the measure following an argument by Alderman G. Everett Millican, author. The committee took the position that such action might react against legitimate publications and thus restrain the freedom of the press.

The committee referred to the finance committee a proposal by Councilman Ed Almand, of the third ward, to set up funds in each of the various departments for maintenance and fueling of automobiles used by the departments. Several routine matters were considered.

RACKETEER VICTIM OF DOUBLE-CROSS

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Police decided today that "Joe the Boss," racketeer slain yesterday, was a victim of the double-cross.

Joe the Boss, otherwise Giuseppe Masseria, had his finger in so many enterprises that detectives found it difficult to determine just which business venture earned him the enemies that caused his death.

Detectives learned that Joe the Boss had been expecting death. That was the reason he hired three men, at $100 a week apiece, to guard him. Those guards were playing cards with him in the Coney Island restaurant when two killers appeared. The bodyguards walked out with Joe and the two men.

A sumptuous funeral is being planned. After it, police fear, there will be warfare to determine who succeeds to the title of boss.

Some detectives described Joe as bigger than Al Capone. One story was that Capone had sent word to him he was becoming unhealthily active in certain quarters.

Several routine matters were considered.

Quality Service Stores Sales Promotion Manager Visits Organization in Atlanta

Retail board of the local Quality Service Stores, which conferred Thursday with Henry T. Swann, of Roanoke, manager of sales promotion for Quality Service Stores, was in Atlanta Thursday on an inspection tour of the southeastern states covered by the organization.

Henry T. Swann, of Roanoke, Va., manager of sales promotion for Quality Service Stores, was in Atlanta Thursday on an inspection tour of the southeastern states covered by the organization.

Service Stores at noon Thursday and addressed the general membership meeting at night in the Chamber of Commerce building.

With food distribution regarded as one of the best indicators of general conditions, the well-known grocery organization executive reported notable improvement in this field.

In spite of the decreased commodity prices, which alone would be expected to cause a drop in total sales figures, these figures have actually been increasing. Grocery store sales are a good index to employment conditions of any community and this is particularly true of states where textile and other mill industries are prominent," Mr. Swann pointed out.

Mr. Swann is completing the last lap of his inspection tour, which is the first made through this territory by him since December. In this state he visited the Quality Service Stores in Augusta and Savannah before coming to Atlanta. Today he plans to leave for Asheville, N. C. His organization now extends over Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina and arrangements are going forward to establish the Quality Service Store system in Alabama and Kentucky.

Modern Acadian Pilgrims Reach Louisiana for Celebration

NEW ORLEANS, April 16.—(AP)—History repeated itself today as some 200 Acadians from the coasts of Nova Scotia arrived in Louisiana to participate in the dedication of a monument to Evangeline on the banks of Bayou Teche.

But like most historical repetitions, there were variations. Unlike their ancestors who fled Grand Pre more than a hundred years ago in slow sailing boats to seek respite from British persecution as exiles in south Louisiana, these modern-day visitors arrived on the city on two special trains and transferred to speedy motor buses for the visit to their distant kin in the Teche country.

The kirtle, wide bertha and full skirts worn by the Canadian women in the party arriving today furnished the only visible reminder of that other Acadian arrival of another century. They were here to return a visit paid to Nova Scotia by Louisiana Acadians last year.

Dudley J. LeBlanc, president of the Louisiana Acadian Society, welcomed the party, which was headed by Judge Arthur T. LeBlanc, supreme justice for New Brunswick.

"Mon Cher Ami!" exclaimed Louisiana's LeBlanc as the party de-

WOMEN PRISONERS STAGE RIOT IN JAIL

LUMBERTON, N. C., April 16.—(AP)—Six girl prisoners staged a riot in the Robeson county jail early today, setting their bunks afire and hurling furniture at officers.

Five officers and firemen were injured in quelling the riot and extinguishing the fires.

The girls spread terror in the jail for an hour, ripping down electric light fixtures and breaking out window panes after setting the fires.

Austin Smith, the jailer, turned the prisoners into a corridor to save them from smothering from the smoke in their cells. There they continued their rioting. Tearing out window sashes they attacked the jailer, cutting one of his fingers almost off and slashing his face with glass. Sheriff P. H. Koenig was similarly attacked.

Arriving firemen were treated the same way. Chief Ed Golicemier received cuts. Clyde Wade, a policeman, received an ugly head wound, and Solicitor T. A. McNeill was slightly hurt when a heavy dish of food was thrown in his face.

Finally the insurgents were overcome by superior strength. They were locked in new cells, containing no furniture.

The girls were removed to the jail and charged with arson three weeks ago after a dormitory at Samarrand, state school for delinquent girls, burned. They had been inmates of the school.

HOOVER TO PROBE RAIL DIFFICULTIES

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—President Hoover today appointed Charles Kerr, of Washington; Chester H. Rowell, of Berkeley, Cal., and Homer B. Dibell, of St. Paul, to investigate the dispute between the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway Co. and certain groups of its employees.

Acting under the authority of the railway labor act, Mr. Hoover issued a proclamation appointing the board of investigation and instructing them to report back within 30 days.

A group of shermen and railroad representatives called upon the board of mediation to adjust certain difficulties between the company and the employees. The board was unable to bring about an adjustment through mediation or arbitration and the employees threatened to strike on April 18.

MASKED MEN BOMB ROAD MACHINERY

ALEXANDRIA, La., April 16.—(AP) Road construction machinery valued at approximately $35,000 was dynamited by 10 masked men in the northern section of Rapides parish about midnight last night after the masked party had overpowered a deputy sheriff acting as night watchman.

Officers today said their investigation was based on reports of intense feeling recently manifested in the district over employment of negro laborers on the construction job.

The equipment destroyed was the property of C. M. Philpot Construction Company, of Pinebluff, Ark., contractors, who started pouring concrete on the project last Monday at ceremonies attended by O. K. Allen, chairman of the highway commission, and Congressman-elect John H. Overton, of the eighth district.

J. G. Honeycutt, the watchman, said masked men seized and bound him and placed the dynamite in the machinery, fleeing with the detonations which shook houses in the neighborhood. He was freed by residents of the countryside awakened by the blasts.

FORMER DRY AGENT IS GIVEN JAIL TERM

BALTIMORE, April 16.—(AP)—Frank Joachim, former prohibition agent and state employee, was sentenced to six months in jail today on a charge of perjury which grew out of his divorce proceedings against his wife in a Baltimore court. He was convicted last month.

Two other witnesses in the divorce case, a man and a woman, also were indicted for perjury and will be tried later.

FORMER WIFE TO FILE SUIT TO BREAK WILL

Mrs. Ida Cook Seeks Share of Estate Left to Michigan University.

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—(AP)—Attorneys for Mrs. Ida C. Cook announced here today that suit will be brought in an effort to break the will of the late William Wilson Cook, noted corporation counsel, by which his $12,000,000 estate was left to the University of Michigan.

Investigation to determine the rights of Mrs. Cook have been under way, said John Chandler Bartlett, one of her attorneys here. When this investigation is completed suit will be filed in the courts of New York, he said.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Cook engaged William Gibbs McAdoo as her counsel, with the law firm of Bartlett, Marion & Lillie here co-operating.

Mrs. Cook, 71 years of age, who divorced Cook in 1908, instructed her attorneys that she would not make any public statement concerning the matter until after the suit has been filed. She has been living here for a number of years. Cook died June 4, 1930.

ALLY OF CAPONE PLEADS NOT GUILTY

CHICAGO, April 16.—(AP)—"Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, once charged with participating in the St. Valentine Day massacre, pleaded not guilty today to charges of violating the Mann act. Louise Roffe, his "double alibi" for the massacre charge, whom McGurn is charged with transporting from Florida, was arraigned with him and pleaded similarly. Trial was set for May 25.

McGurn, whose real name is Vincent Gebard, and the girl were arrested in a hotel during the investigation of the massacre of seven Moran gangsters two years ago. He is an ally of Al Capone.

LOCOMOTIVE CATCHES ESCAPING PRISONER

POTEAU, Okla., April 16.—(AP)—A railroad locomotive chased down an escaped prisoner near here yesterday.

Two officers approached a farm house to recapture B. Wilson, one of three men who escaped from the LeFlore county jail on February 8. Wilson fled down a railroad track with the officers in pursuit, firing at him.

The engineer of a switch engine saw the chase and joined it. The officers were taken aboard and the engine overtook Wilson, who was found to be wounded by gunshot.

He is charged with burglary and perjury. The two who escaped with him were captured a few days ago at Franklington, La.

Gambling Ordered Suspended in Reno

RENO, Nev., April 16.—(AP)—Suspension of open gambling, started recently in Reno after passage of a new state law, has been ordered April 25 by District Attorney Melvin Jenson.

The suspension was ordered today because the Reno city council has not passed an ordinance legalizing gambling. The state law requires that gambling permits shall not be issued by the various county sheriffs unless applicants can produce a city license.

The city council announced last week it would not consider a gambling ordinance prior to a city election to be held May 5.

ACTRESS REVEALS SECRET MARRIAGE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—Those who contend a woman can't keep a secret found support for the theory today in a revelation by Helen Twelvetrees, film actress, that she had been married three weeks without telling anyone about it.

The actress wore her wedding ring to the studio yesterday and the secret that she was married in Reno, Nev., to Frank Woody, Hollywood real estate broker, was out. They had returned from a honeymoon in northern California.

This is Miss Twelvetrees' second marriage. Her divorce from Clark Twelvetrees on charges of cruelty was granted March 26, 1930, becoming final March 31, last.

COUNTY MERGER NEED STRESSED BY GULLATT

Fulton-Campbell Union Would Give Impetus to Others, Says Bill's Author.

The scientific and carefully-planned consolidation of Georgia counties into about one-third the present number, while plausible on paper, is impossible so long as human nature must be dealt with, in the opinion of C. H. Gullatt, of Union City, author of the Fulton-Campbell county merger bill, which is to be voted upon in Fulton county next Wednesday.

Mr. Gullatt was invited to speak in favor of the merger Thursday afternoon before the City Club, meeting at The Tavern.

"I agree that it would be an ideal solution of Georgia's problem to take a pencil and a map and subdivide the state into perhaps 50 counties, grouping neighbors together according to area and taxable wealth and other factors," he said. "But to accomplish that, a bill must pass the general assembly and then a constitutional amendment be voted by the people.

"Could you reasonably expect members of the legislature to support a movement which would abolish their own counties and do away with county offices held by their friends and supporters? Such a statewide movement would be impossible of accomplishment.

"The only way in which the number of Georgia counties ever can be reduced is by voluntary act of the smaller counties which are willing to be merged with a neighbor county.

Campbell county has taken the first step in this direction. I have noted in the Georgia newspapers that several other small counties are considering similar steps. Crawford county is talking of merging with Bibb, and the same situation exists in perhaps a dozen parts of the state. I believe that favorable action by Fulton next Wednesday will start the ball rolling."

Mr. Gullatt quoted figures to demonstrate that the income received by Fulton county from the new territory will be amply sufficient to pay for the additional expense of government.

"Campbell does not need the financial resources of Fulton, but expects to pay her own way," he said. "We will not ask that more money be spent on this territory than it pays in."

CITY FEDERATION OPENS COTTON EXPOSITION TODAY

Hostesses Will Include Officers and Members

In line with a movement launched by the Georgia State Federation of Women's Clubs to secure a wider use of cotton, the south's major product, a cotton exposition of 1931 will be staged by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs at Davidson-Paxon Company, beginning today. This movement was accelerated by the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers in the adoption of resolutions last Wednesday in Macon at its convention, requesting public school authorities to rule in favor of cotton graduation dresses for this June.

Officers and a group of prominent members of the City Federation of Women's Clubs interested in the cotton movement will act as hostesses each day during the exposition, which begins this morning at 9 o'clock and will continue through Thursday, April 23. The hostesses for today include Mrs. S. F. Boykin, president; Mrs. E. V. Carter, first vice president; Mrs. R. M. Walker, second vice president; Mrs. F. C. Block, third vice president; Miss Susie Walles, recording secretary; Mrs. R. M. Wolfe, treasurer; Mrs. Harry M. Gershon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. Hastings, auditor; Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. O. Oltley, chairman of advisory board; Mrs. Norman Sharp and Mrs. R. Rambo, past presidents of the City Federation; Mrs. E. M. Helbig, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. A. J. Merrill and Mrs. A. A. Acklin.

History Traced.
Mrs. S. F. Boykin, president of the City Federation, announced Thursday at an entire aisle on the second floor of the Peachtree department store has been turned over to the City Federation for the staging of the tremendous educational event which will trace the history of cotton rearing for the past 1,700 years. A spectacular enclosure composed of cotton and glass will house the exposition, and the exhibits—in addition to showing every known type of pre-machine weaving of cotton by hand—will show smart new gowns, and other high fashion garments that are so popular in cottons at this time. As an added attraction, articles of every type in cotton that are manufactured in Georgia and the south will be on display. On behalf of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Boykin Thursday issued a general invitation to the public of Atlanta and vicinity to attend this colorful and interesting event.

"The State Federation of Women's Clubs," said Mrs. Boykin, "has taken very active stand in appealing for the widest possible use of cottons as means of aiding the chief industry of this city, state and section. The Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs is delighted at the opportunity to present to the public in a graphic way picture of the tremendously varied ways in which cotton may be used, from everything from high style apparel fabrics to the most utilitarian home articles."

Novel Collection.
The chief feature of the cotton exposition will be a collection of pre-machine cotton fabrics, dating from 900 A. D., the private collection of D. C. Crawford, associate editor of the Daily News Record of New York. The collection includes hand-woven cotton fabrics from pre-Inca Peru, ancient Egypt, and primitive Africa, as well as a variety of more recent hand-woven fabrics from Japan, Java, the Caroline Islands, India and Bolivia, the Grecian Islands and Persia.

The front entrance to the exhibit will be made of wood covered with Persian and Egyptian wall letters announcing the greatest cotton exhibit in Atlanta since the famous cotton exposition of 1895 in Piedmont park. The side walls will be made of drapery composed of puddles of cotton tied in thousands of streamers suspended from the roof of the exhibit. The department store, in order to lend southern color to the event, a band of colored children will supply music.

Agnes Scott Glee Club Program.
The Agnes Scott Glee Club, directed by Gussie O'Neal Johnson, will appear in a varied and interesting program in the college chapel tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The concert will consist of two parts, the first of the usual glee club character, made up of classical, early English and French folk songs, a group of spirituals and other selections of modern trend as well as some anti-popular numbers.

Part two includes a free version of the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera, "Pinafore." Act I, adding interest with six choruses and two returned, popular male singers will assist in this part of the program. Vaughan, Walter Herbert, Warner Hall, Charles White and William Taylor, together with several other "Britishers."

Vivian Bryant, Mary Rountree and Mary Katherine Williamson take the parts of Josephine, Hebe and Buttercup, respectively.

There are no reserved seats and a very small admission will be taken at the door.

History Study Club.
The History Study Club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Johnnie Aiken at her home on Greenwood avenue. Mrs. Lambdin Kay, president, presided. There was a short business session, during which Mrs. Fred Hubbe, a former member of the club, has recently returned from Knoxville, was welcomed again into the club.

An entertaining paper on Washington, D. C., was presented by Mrs. W. E. Bryant. She traced an imaginary trip through the ages when the national capital was occupied by the Indians and up to the present sighting trip through that famous city.

Instead of the current event topic, Mrs. T. M. Stubbs, of the League of Women Voters, spoke on the subject of voting.

The club had as guests Mrs. T. M. Stubbs, Mrs. Charles S. Conklin and Mrs. E. A. Rider.

The members present were Mesdames Lambdin Kay, Henry Sacre, Albert Jones, Perry Bechtel, Frank Crowther, L. P. Gilpin, Walter Van Nostred, L. A. Meyer, R. G. Sawyer, R. H. Barrett, Mrs. Patton, P. D. Christian, W. H. Bryan, Fred Hubbe, Johnnie Aiken and Leola Brown.

The next meeting will be held April 28 with Mrs. Albert Jones as hostess.

Mrs. Norton Lectures on Bulbs To Macon Garden Club Members

Mrs. Anne C. Norton has returned from Macon, where she lectured to the Vineville Garden Club members at the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, her subject being "Summer Flowering Bulbs." Mrs. Norton is past president of Lullwater Garden Club of Atlanta, and she quoted Richardson Wright, editor of House and Garden, as saying that there are three tests of the real gardener: "First, he mouths botanical names, not the pet or local names of flowers. Though the gardener may know little Latin and less Greek, if he will learn the meaning of botanical terms he will find that these terms shed a light on the care of his plants, for if he knows that gypsophila means lime-loving he will be more intelligent in the treatment of this plant."

"The second test," said Mrs. Norton, "is that the gardener must not be afraid of hard work. The third test is that the gardener must be vitally interested in his soil. He must use a soil test kit, or send soil to the state capital to have the test made," and she suggested a soil-testing program as a profitable one for a garden club meeting.

The success of the English gardens is based on trenching, said Mrs. Norton. Her own garden has flourished as the result of patient and careful trenching, because plant children must be kept growing very fast, stated Mrs. Norton.

The lean and hungry look that comes to gardens in the summer can be avoided by planting summer-flowering bulbs that give lily-like flowers and add variety to the daisy-like flowers of midsummer. She urged the planting of ruffled gladioli, mentioning as desirable varieties: Flora, yellow; Le Marchall Foch, delicate pink; Mrs. Frank Pendleton, rose with scarlet blotches; Mrs. Francis King, light scarlet.

The planting of primula hybrids was suggested, saying that they are graceful and easy to arrange and mentioning as some of the good varieties orange queen, shell, pink, orchid, yellow, and their hybrids should do well in our gardens, as they are natives of Africa, and the middle Georgia climate approximates that of Africa," said Mrs. Norton. Montretries were recommended as accommodating and inexpensive.

Mrs. Norton spoke of the hyacinthus candicans, which give a stalk 4 feet high, and of plantain lily (lilium) to give a color note of white and blue. She mentioned the single American tube rose, everblooming, and the butterfly lily, another Mexican plant which is hardly and like a well-behaved canna. She enthused over the planting of the day lily (hemerocallis), the favorite of gardeners for 350 years.

Burgess Children's Stories

THE NEW HOME OF THE YELLOW WING.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Who do they create both something and To give the world and make it glad.
—Yellow Wing the Flicker.

This is true. Who never creates anything adds nothing to the world's store of riches. He goes through life taking rather than giving. A worker usually is a creator. Whoever makes something of use creates something, and the world is just that much better off.

Yellow Wing and Flicker and Mrs. Yellow Wing were working hard. Work is to be done there isn't a lazy bone in them. Now that they had started work on their new home in a telegraph pole in front of Farmer Brown's house they kept steadily at it. Yellow Wing would work until tired, when Mrs. Yellow Wing would take over. They didn't want to stop for both to work at the same time. They certainly did make the chips fly, those two.

That first day they worked until jolly round red Mr. Sun had started for bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows were already stealing across Farmer Brown's yard. The next morning they could hardly wait for the coming of daylight. It was peck, peck, peck with their sharp bills all day long, one working while the other hunted food, and then changing occupations.

As Mrs. Yellow Wing had said, there was a soft spot in that pole and this made the work easier. First they cut a hole straight in. Then they began to cut down. After a while the hole was so deep that they had to climb up to the entrance in order to drop the chips outside. Deeper and deeper grew the hole until Yellow Wing began to wonder when Mrs. Yellow Wing would be satisfied.

"Are you trying to get to the bottom of the pole?" he asked mildly.

"I am trying to get it deep enough to discourage any visitors," replied Mrs. Yellow Wing. "I'm going to have it deep enough for our babies to be safe when they are tiny and helpless. I'm not going to have it possible for Sammy Jay or anybody else to sit in the doorway, reach down and pull one of the darlings out when we are off hunting food for them. I've known it to happen in a shallow house. Yes, sir, I've known it to happen. It isn't going to happen here."

"Right, my dear, quite right," agreed Yellow Wing. "I sometimes wonder if this pole was a wise choice. It stands so out in the open. Everyone will know where we live."

"Who cares?" retorted Mrs. Yellow Wing. "Most folks would know sooner or later anyway, and they may as well know it first as last. Has it occurred to you that Mr. Blacksnake can't get up here? You remember that he got our eggs once. He can't climb this smooth pole as he can a tree. Black Pussy isn't so likely to bother us either. usually is a creator. Whoever makes something of use creates something, and the world is just that much better off.

Yellow Wing and Flicker and Mrs. Yellow Wing were working hard. Work is to be done there isn't a lazy bone in them. Now that they had started work on their new home in a telegraph pole in front of Farmer Brown's house they kept steadily at it. Yellow Wing would work until tired, when Mrs. Yellow Wing would take over. They didn't want to stop for both to work at the same time. They certainly did make the chips fly, those two.

That first day they worked until jolly round red Mr. Sun had started for bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows were already stealing across Farmer Brown's yard. The next morning they could hardly wait for the coming of daylight. It was peck, peck, peck with their sharp bills all day long, one working while the other hunted food, and then changing occupations.

As Mrs. Yellow Wing had said, there was a soft spot in that pole and this made the work easier. First they cut a hole straight in. Then they began to cut down. After a while the hole was so deep that they had to climb up to the entrance in order to drop the chips outside. Deeper and deeper grew the hole until Yellow Wing began to wonder when Mrs. Yellow Wing would be satisfied.

"Are you trying to get to the bottom of the pole?" he asked mildly.

"I am trying to get it deep enough to discourage any visitors," replied Mrs. Yellow Wing. "I'm going to have it deep enough for our babies to be safe when they are tiny and helpless. I'm not going to have it possible for Sammy Jay or anybody else to sit in the doorway, reach down and pull one of the darlings out when we are off hunting food for them. I've known it to happen in a shallow house. Yes, sir, I've known it to happen. It isn't going to happen here."

"Right, my dear, quite right," agreed Yellow Wing. "I sometimes wonder if this pole was a wise choice. It stands so out in the open. Everyone will know where we live."

"Who cares?" retorted Mrs. Yellow Wing. "Most folks would know sooner or later anyway, and they may as well know it first as last. Has it occurred to you that Mr. Blacksnake can't get up here? FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

If There Is Anything in Favor of This Marriage, the Questioner Didn't Mention It—Grace, Like Beauty, Is More Than Skin Deep; The Best-Disciplined Muscles Are Directed by the Mind.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

A man of fifty, separated from his wife, the father of four children, is asking me to marry him after he has gotten his divorce. I have heard a good deal of gossip about the cause of the separation but none of these stories seems good enough ground for divorce. He is a much respected man in his community and apparently a moral man. I am only thirty-one and there is nearly twenty years difference in our ages. Then there is the problem of the children. I don't know whether I could get along with them. What you think about these points?

MELBA.

ANSWER:

I think you better let that man alone until he has his divorce. It is a habit with some men to talk about what they are going to do with certain women, once they get them. And in the same way they speak glibly about what they will do with a woman, once they get them. In many instances full indulgence of fine fancies in which they see themselves the heroes placing crowns on the fair heads of their heroines. Don't you allow yourself to be led by the nose by the man who is married.

There is a big difference between separation and divorce. To begin with, until the law gives the divorce there is always a strong chance of reconciliation between the man and his former wife. Indeed, you are doing wrong when you consider that chance. By engaging yourself to the husband you are doing just that.

When there are children divorce is particularly tragic. If those children feel that their mother has been wronged by their father, they would naturally hate you and resent you. According to your own admission the cause of the separation is not entirely clear to you. It is possible that the blame rests on the husband's shoulders. In that event you couldn't expect to feel very secure in a marriage with him. As for the difference in age, it is not a serious difficulty. Twenty years constitutes a pretty big gulf to be bridged. It has been done successfully and it has also resulted in bitter disappointment. It is far from ideal for a man and a woman to be separated by so many years. But I repeat the obstacles in the way of your probable marriage are so many and so great that the importance of the age question pales into insignificance.

A lawyer from one of the biggest legal firms in this country the other day reiterated what we have all read and heard a hundred times: "Divorces grow out of three causes: Morals, money, inlaws." If you plan to marry this man you are planning to start your married life with two of these ready-made problems to wrestle with. Some have one or more loom up after they are married but you would be starting out with two of them and no doubt if there are four children to support the third one will be introduced before you have got going. It is a large order. It would take a brave soul to tackle it; or an unthoughtful one.

To quote the lawyer again, he commented that it was remarkable what a predilection these divorces have for a second or third divorce. "If it is not pleasant, then cut loose. It has been done, it may be done again," seems to be the attitude of those who have tried it. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am a girl in my teens, longing to be graceful and at ease. My friends call me an old maid and that doesn't make me feel very comfortable. I haven't many friends and those I claim don't seek me out. How can I be more popular?

ANSWER:

Dancing and skating and all the other outdoor sports tend to give a girl muscular grace. However, grace, like beauty, is something deeper than skin and even than muscle. It is closely connected with a poised spirit and as Pope said, "It is beyond the reach of art." In other words, it is a natural gift. That doesn't mean, however, that it cannot be cultivated. If you stumble over the furniture in the living room because you are self-conscious and embarrassed, dancing and skating and all the healthy sports won't cure you. But if along with the muscular exercise you are exercising your mind and your spirit trying to turn your thoughts out toward others and less in toward your miserable self, pretty soon grace will come more easily to you.

If you can school yourself to take a little teasing from your friends, whose very teasing shows you they are friendly toward you, if you can laugh with them over those traits which lead them to dub you an old maid (surely, no disgrace) then you will have acquired some poise. If you stop counting visits with your friends, stop balancing how many times they call you against how many times you call them, if you can stop measuring your popularity and put your energy to work in contributing to their pleasure, you will find yourself a more acceptable friend to them and a more pleasant companion to yourself.

As we get older we choose our friends with reference to many different qualifications. But the young people of teen age are all about the same business; and they choose their friends with reference to congeniality on these points: They want to associate with other young people who share their tastes, engage in the same sports, and, incidentally, those who can be good sports. They like to give and take a lot of chaffing and banter. A gang of young people out for a good time have no patience with a girl who wants to spend her time in introspection, in analyzing and talking about herself. They have more interesting topics to discuss. Neither do they want to be called to account for failure to seek out another friend. If she does her part she doesn't have to be sought out.

The way to be more popular is to stop thinking about popularity and put your mind on making the time pleasant for others. The way to be more graceful is to stop thinking about your awkwardness and to forget that you have any hands and feet.

We are funny the way we dig our own pits and then fall in them and, funnier still, we call loudly for someone to come and pull us out when we are the only ones who know the way to get out. But we have to have some experience that makes us want to get out badly enough to make the effort or we die where we fall. You have fallen, you have the ambition to come out, you have called for help and now your would-be rescuer says to you, "Scramble out by the way you can, can't get down to you out but I'll stand on the edge of the pit and cheer you as you pull up and out." CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

with the claws of all four feet and we could drive her down without any trouble. Really, my dear, it is the best location we ever have had."

"Perhaps it is, my dear. Perhaps it is," Yellow Wing hastened to say. "It suits you, it suits me. Aren't you almost there?"

Mrs. Yellow Wing brought out the last of the chips she had cut. Then she inspected their work carefully. She took off a bit here and a bit there to smooth the walls. Satisfied at last, she climbed up and began to cut chips out of the room. Instead of throwing these outside, she dropped them down to the bottom of the hole of the house. Yellow Wing saw what she was doing and rejoiced. He knew then that the new house was almost finished; Mrs. Yellow Wing was making a bed of chips, for this is all the nest she uses. Two or three times she went down to see if that bed of chips was thick enough. Finally she poked her head out the doorway.

"Let's go eat," said she. (Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

Service Star Legion Pledges $100 to War Education Fund

Service Star Legion, Atlanta and Fulton county chapter, met Tuesday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's Club, the president presiding.

Reports from the state convention held in Montezuma recently were made and the new state division president, Mrs. J. C. Mellichamp, was welcomed.

One hundred dollars was pledged by the chapter to the state World War education fund. This state fund is used this year to care for three little motherless children of a disabled War veteran at the Williams Home school in Nacoochee.

To Miss Moran's message relating to the present urge that more cotton material be used by the women there was a hearty response, and a pledge given that each woman present would do what she could to increase the popularity of cotton dress fabrics. Especially was it stressed that to many mothers with daughters graduating, it would be a great relief to have the cotton dress fabrics generally accepted as appropriate instead of being confined to the use of the more expensive materials.

The chapter plans to give in May a luncheon to Mrs. L. J. Anderson on the eve of her leaving to visit her son in France.

Miss Nunn Weds Mr. Neuhoof At Morning Church Ceremony

A wedding of beauty and simplicity was that of Miss Marjorie Nunn, of Decatur, and Arthur N. Neuhoof, of Atlanta, which took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at Sacred Heart church with Father John Emmert officiating.

White roses and Easter lilies were used effectively against a background of palms and ferns massed around the altar.

Miss Margaret Neuhoof, the maid of honor, wore a green ensemble with hat, shoes and accessories of beige, and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The lovely bride wore a light beige champagne costume with cocoa ermine trimming, a straw hat of beige, and matching accessories. Her flowers were bride's roses showered with valley lilies. She was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his

Brenau Faculty To Give Concert

Sunday, April 19, at 3 p. m., a musical concert by faculty members of Brenau College will be held at the High Museum of Art. This concert will be followed by a preview and tea for Miss Margaret Law, of Baltimore, Md. Miss Law's work depicts the old south and its plantation workers such as "Cotton Pickers," "Road Workers," "The Plantation Surroundings," etc., making records that have passed or are passing which should be preserved for all time.

Macy President Sees Crackers Win Opener

Jesse Isidor Straus, president of R. H. Macy & Co., New York, saw the Crackers take the opener from Chattanooga at Spiller field Thursday, the first day of his three-day visit to Atlanta. He also enjoyed a round of golf at East Lake during the day. The party at the ball game included his son Jack, Colonel F. J. Paxon, and Raymond A. Kline, manager of Davidson-Paxon company, while the golf foursome included Paul Franke, Davidson's merchandise executive; Mr. Straus and his son, and Mr. Kline.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Kline entertained Mr. Straus and his party at the Brookhaven Country Club. Mr. Straus will tour the Davidson-Paxon store this morning and gather impressions which he will discuss with a group of junior executives at a luncheon following. Tonight he will be the guest of Major John S. Cohen at a dinner at the Piedmont Hotel.

Saturday he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Alston at a luncheon and the guest of Governor John M. Slaton at dinner. Sunday the Straus party will leave for Florida.

CHAIRMAN SNELL SEES END OF HIGH TARIFF

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—The end of artificial economic stimulation through tariff walls was forecast tonight by Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, who said protection has "gone the limit."

Addressing the St. Lawrence County Society, Snell, a leading contender for the republican speakership nomination, said:

"For many years on account of our natural resources and by means of a protective tariff, we have artificially maintained a higher standard of living than in other countries; but we have gone the limit on a tariff, our natural advantages are being depleted and it will be necessary that the next generation govern its economic standards and living conditions more in accord with worldwide conditions than we have in the past."

"In this country we have gone the limit of artificial stimulation and my prediction is that in the next few decades living conditions in America and the rest of the world are going to be much nearer the same level than they are today."

FAMILY CAN KEEP LOTTERY WINNINGS

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 16.—(AP) None of the $860,000 which Clayton C. Woods and his relatives won on the grand national steeplechase will go to the poor of Buffalo unless Woods wants to give it to them.

Corporation Counsel Charles L. Feldman today ruled that a hundred-year-old city ordinance which applied in the Woods case. The ordinance provided that the overseer of the poor was obliged to bring a court action to recover for the benefit of the city's poor any money won in a lottery.

At the first suggestion that attempts might be made to deprive them of their winnings, the entire Woods family went into seclusion. Clayton Woods and his wife today were somewhere in Canada, while his brother, Kenneth, and brothers-in-law, Clarence and Elmer Batt, could not be located.

Civil War Veteran, 86, Becomes Father of Boy

GREENVIEW, Ill., April 16.—(AP)—Edward A. Probst, 86, a veteran of the Civil War, yesterday became the father of an eight and one-half pound son.

Three years ago another son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Probst.

Daughter of G. E. President Gives Lecture on Astronomy

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Miss Henrietta Swope, who is the daughter of Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, and has a reputation of her own as an astronomer, lectured last night at the American Museum of Natural History.

Miss Swope started working four years ago, a year after her graduation from Barnard College, in the Harvard observatory, under Dr. Harlow Shapley, its director.

So far she has to her credit the discovery of more than 400 variable stars—"yardsticks," used by astronomers in measuring the universe. Her discoveries enabled Dr. Shapley to announce the center of the Milky Way had been found to lie within the Milky Way.

Miss Swope has not made up her mind as yet to follow astronomy as a career, but she does find it interesting.

"It is a tremendous appeal to the imagination," she said today, "but then, so have other fields of science, atoms and electrons, for instance."

She became interested in astronomy, she said, because she always liked to look at the stars. She majored in mathematics at Barnard—but she had "forgotten all that," she says, and now she uses it anyway—put in a year of social service study at Chicago University, and then turned to astronomy. While working in the Harvard observatory she took her master's degree in astronomy at Radcliffe.

"When I first went to work for Dr. Shapley," she said, "he assigned me to Milky Way field 185—known among astronomers as M. W. F. 185—one of the sections into which the Milky Way is divided for study. I now also have M. W. F. 177."

"The variable stars which we study are called variable because they vary in brilliance. Some of them go through eclipses. Some of them keep expanding and contracting so that they are bright at some times, dim at others."

"Those which I have been studying are about 50,000 light years away. You can get some idea of the distance by the fact that one light year measures 5,880 billion miles."

"Our work is done with camera plates. Every night, in Cambridge and at an observatory in Africa, pictures are taken of the sections of the Milky Way under observation. We call it patrolling the Milky Way. Then we study the plates. There are six of 's at Harvard doing that work."

"It's a pretty ordinary job, but I like it. And now and then, when you stand off and look at it, it's extremely interesting. Nobody knows how many variable stars there are. More than 4,000 have been discovered. And when you stop to think that the variable stars, after all, comprise only a very small percentage of the stars in the universe—well, it is interesting, isn't it?"

"Twenty or thirty years from now we'll be able to tell a lot more about those variable stars. At least somebody will. I don't know whether I'll still be looking for them or not, though."

Miss Swope used lantern slides to explain to members of the American Astronomers' Association last night how one hunts for variable stars.

The whole thing is rather complicated," she said today. "Without slides it is pretty hard to explain."

GROUP TO REPORT ON CANNON PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—The senate campaign funds committee will meet tomorrow to consider information gathered by its investigators concerning the use of funds by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign.

Chairman Nye has called the meeting to determine whether the committee will hold further hearings on the Cannon case.

The committee has announced its purpose is to determine whether all approximately $67,000 given the churchman for campaign purposes by E. C. Jameson, of New York, was used in the effort to defeat former Governor James H. Thompson, the democratic presidential candidate.

Children's Theater Appoints Chairmen

Children's theater of Atlanta held a special meeting yesterday to elect chairmen and appoint committees.

This group of children, studying under the direction of Mary Marshall Wightman, since November, have produced six plays creating their own sets and scenery and executing all costumes used in productions. Now they will turn their attention to the practical side of organization and details for furthering the activities of this interesting group of young folk.

The appointments made are: Publicity, Kathleen Stokely, chairman; Valerie Blackwell, co-chairman; stage, Joan Stokely; props, Robert Stokely; business managers, Lonella Stone and Roger Stokely; properties, Robert Stokely and Hays Law.

The next production of the Junior theater association of the Children's theater of Atlanta, will be a three-act play, "The Silver Thread," which will be presented on the May program.

Participation in the Junior theater assembly is by membership and application may be made at the Children's theater headquarters, Studio Arts building, Fourth and Peachtree streets, or by telephoning the director, Miss Mary Marshall Wightman, Hemlock 9358.

ROWBOTTOM COUNSEL PLANS NO APPEAL

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 16.—(AP)—Convicted of accepting bribes for procuring postoffice appointments, Rowbottom, former Indiana first district congressman, must serve a year and a day in Leavenworth federal penitentiary and pay a fine of $2,000.

A federal court jury which deliberated two hours and five minutes last night found that Rowbottom accepted $750 from Walter G. Ayer, for appointment of a postoffice, and that he received $800 for procuring the Dale, Ind., postmastership for Grant Johnson.

Rowbottom's attorneys indicated no appeal will be taken. At liberty under $10,000 bond, the former congressman was ordered to report at Indianapolis April 20 to start his journey to the penitentiary.

The conviction, concluding a two-day trial, was on four counts of the indictment returned against him early this year. Similar sentences on each count will run concurrently. Rowbottom was indicted on four additional counts of bribery and a charge of conspiracy was dismissed on motion of the government.

Rowbottom's attorneys tried unsuccessfully to obtain probation for the defendant, on grounds he is a weakling physically, that others involved in the deals were not indicted, and that he is not of the mental calibre usually associated with the high office he held.

Refusing the request, Special Judge Charles E. Woodward, of Chicago, said, "the court cannot condone the flagrant and cynical barter and sale of public offices as disclosed by the evidence in this case. I do not deem it necessary to impose the extreme penalty but the sentence must be of such a nature as to deter other congressmen from such practices."

Testifying in his own defense, Rowbottom yesterday admitted having accepted $750 from Walter G. Ayer, and having received $800 from Otto A. Weibrenne, former postmaster at Mount Vernon, but contended the money had been given him to meet a deficit created by his losing campaign for reelection last fall, and not in exchange for postal appointments.

SECRET PLACES

BY JOAN SUTHERLAND

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

"I'm tremendously honored," Toni told Paul Ravel demurely, "but it's just impossible. You can paint me later, if you will. I suppose your idea was the blushing bride? Is that it? Seriously, I wish I could. I should adore to be painted by you, but I'm terribly rushed. I have hardly a minute, and I have such a lot of things to do, and with that he was obliged to be satisfied. Toni, enfant terrible as she could deliberately be on occasion, had not, however, quite done with him.

"I liked your companion the other day," she said, taking a cigarette from the case he held out. "She was most attractive. I met Monsieur Ravel the other afternoon when Madeline and I were having tea at Sida's mother."

Ravel, very much man of the world as he was, was quite aware that she was deliberately bringing up the subject, and having no wish for Lady Alice to imagine any mystery or intrigue, passed the matter off with a shrug.

"Yes, she is an attractive child, but hardly a friend for you, Mademoiselle Toni—my Vesta!" he added, turning to Lady Alice. "I am using her again in a picture, and, since I fear she has been—how do you say it?—in deep water since the spring when I saw her last, I take her out occasionally. It pleases her to believe herself for so short a while one of the more sheltered jeunes filles."

Toni's eyes lost their mockery. "She is educated," he said. "I spoke to her, mother, since I let the door hang against her foot. You know that bestly done at Sida's. It's as stiff as the devil. Oh, pardon, m'sieur! que le diable!"

Lady Alice frowned, then laughed. "Have you ever read a story called 'Kim' by our great English writer, Kipling?" she asked her guest. "No? Well, Kim was a young boy. A Little Friend of All the World. That is my daughter all the time."

Ravel bowed. "I think it is rather a beautiful thing to be," he said. "I can think of no more charming quality . . . it softens the ways of life so greatly for those whose going must always be too hard. Mademoiselle Toni would gain no harm by her few minutes of kindly conversation with my little model."

Then, as he prepared to take his leave, he deftly changed the conversation to a lighter note. "You go to the bal masque at the opera on Thursday, I hear," he said. "You represent—whom?"

"Not fancy dress," Toni said. "I struck. I've had enough fittings, and I wouldn't endure one more. We're just wearing masks. That's all."

They talked for a few minutes longer, then Ravel took his leave. Toni went to dress, and Lady Alice phoned her elder daughter.

"I wanted to ask you if you had decided yet about the ball," Lady Alice said. "Are you going with the Delvilles or with us? I should like to know tonight if possible."

"Oh, with the Delvilles," Greta answered. "Ronald is coming for a short while. Thanks so much . . . I hope I did not leave it too long."

Lady Alice assured her the delay did not matter, and rang off, relieved that her son-in-law was going to the ball. It was all very well for Toni to condemn Greta so strongly for receiving so much attention from other men, but after all, Ronald had, by reason of his newspaper work, to leave his wife a good deal, and there were times when Greta was bound to feel lonely and to need other escorts.

"Feodor—I Greta has stayed on with that delectable man!"

Toni's voice, low and rather urgent, greeted Staire as he came up to claim his last dance at the bal masque, somewhere about 2 o'clock, and as they moved off into the throng he realized that she was acutely anxious, and eager to reassure her, said:

"But she is with the Delvilles."

"No, they're left, Greta is staying on alone. Can't we do something?"

Pannie would be furious if he found out, and so would mother.

"Dearest—I'll try. But your sister is a married woman, and I have no right to interfere."

"I'm scared!" Toni said, looking up with dilated eyes. "Feodor, I'm frightened. I don't know why, but I believe something dreadful is going to happen, something really ghastly. It's the sense of something evil . . . Feodor, I'm not generally nervous and jumpy except during thunderstorms, but this time I'm really frightened."

"I'll invite her to dance with me, and ask if I may see her home when she is ready to go," Feodor said quietly. "Don't be frightened, darling, it will be all right."

"Will it? I don't know . . . Feodor, don't let anything hurt you. I couldn't bear it."

He saw that she was really distressed, and, guiding her out of the crowd took her to Lady Alice's log, which was for the moment empty, soothing her fears and assuring her of his intention to see that Greta came to no harm. When she left with her mother's party a few minutes later, he accompanied them down the great flight of steps to their car.

"You will dine with us tomorrow, then, Feodor?" Lady Alice said, as she bade him farewell. "Good-night; it has been a delightful evening."

The car slid away, and Staire stood watching it go down the rue de la Paix, his nerves still thrilling with the order of Toni's last kiss; then he turned and went up the steps back into the great building.

He found Greta at last with a little group of masks, asked her for the next dance—a tango—but not until the dance was ended did he venture to suggest that he might see her home.

"I am driving almost past your apartment," he said. "May I take you back when you are ready to go?"

She looked at him with lovely lazy eyes. "Monsieur D'Arblay is seeing me home," she said. "But since we are to be so closely related, won't you have luncheon with me tomorrow at the Ritz at 1 o'clock?"

Her eyes completed the sentence: "And then you will be quite sure that you were a fool to love Toni instead of me," but her tongue was silent, and Feodor had perforce to accept, D'Arblay, coming up at this moment, laid his hand on Greta's arm.

"Madame Halkett is with me," he said definitely. "I will take every care of her."

Feodor made an involuntary movement, but Greta stepped between them, her eyes sparkling into sudden life to shadow her unseen. Little scene which was gratifying to her vanity.

"Henri, don't be absurd! You know that Mr. Staire is about to become my brother-in-law."

"Oh, indeed?" D'Arblay drew back, his opaque brown eyes traveling slowly over Staire's powerful figure. "A thousand pardons! In this crowd—"

A gesture finished the sentence, whereupon there was nothing else for Staire to do but acknowledge the apology, say a brief good-night, and take his departure; but though he went, he determined for Toni's sake not to lose sight of Greta if it were possible to shadow her unseen. Consequently, when 20 minutes later she left and got into D'Arblay's car outside the opera, he took a taxi and bode the man follow at a discreet distance.

He had laughed gently at Toni's fears; but now, driving along the deserted streets westward, he laughed no longer, but felt a faint, inexplicable uneasiness, which suddenly became an active anxiety as his taxi pulled up short.

"Pourquoi?" he was beginning, but the man, leaning back, spoke through the open window.

"M'sieur, voilà! Ils s'arretent."

Staire looked, and saw that the car was halted some distance in front, and even as he looked he saw first D'Arblay, and then Greta Halkett alight from it, and, hardly believing his eyes, saw D'Arblay speak to the man and dismiss him.

Gar Wood Fails by Split Second To Set New Speed Record at Miami

NINE ATTEMPTS TO BREAK MARK MADE BY PILOT

Speed of More Than 100 Miles Registered by Huge Boat.

MIAMI, Fla., April 16.—(AP)—Gar Wood, the famed Miss America IX nine times over Indian creek today in an effort to break the world's motor boat speed record of 103.49 miles an hour but failed by only a split second.

The highest speed he was able to attain during the day was 103.249 miles an hour, made on his fifth run, which was clocked at 40.15 seconds over the measured nautical mile course.

The present record, timed at 40.056 seconds, was set by Kaye Don, British race car driver, in his Miss England II in trials on the Parana river at Buenos Aires.

"Taking the fastest run Wood made today over the course during the day, his best two-way average speed was 103.19 miles an hour. This was only .30 of a mile an hour under the present record. His average elapsed time for those two runs was 40.17 seconds or only .12 of a second under Don's record time.

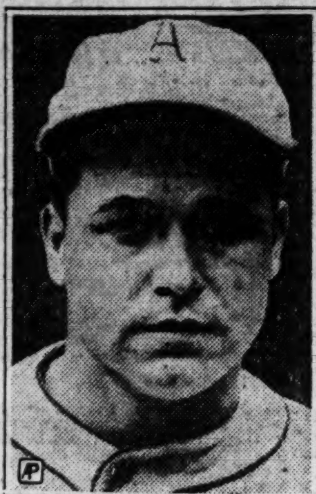

Regardless of whether either or both of those runs had been faster than the present record, however, they could not have been used in computing a new world's mark as they were not made within a given 30-minute period as provided by regulations.

Immediately after concluding his runs today, Wood announced he was undecided whether he would make further trials at this time. He said it would require several days to recondition the boat for additional attempts and that he should go to New York on business. Definite decision as to his future plans probably will be made tomorrow, he said.

After making five runs today, ranging in speed from 101 to 103 miles.

Injured

JIMMY FOXX

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx, the Philadelphia Athletics' first baseman, suffered torn ligaments on the outside of his left knee in yesterday's ball game with Washington at the national capital. It was revealed today after Foxx was examined by Dr. J. B. Carnett here. Definite knowledge as to the extent of the injury and the length of time Foxx will be out of the game will not be had until tomorrow when X-ray photographs will be developed.

The first baseman received the injury while trying to go from first to third on a hit. His spikes caught in the dirt at second base and he fell heavily on his left leg.

JACKETS MEET PETRELS TODAY AT ROSE BOWL

Two Teams Clash at 4 O'Clock in Two-Game Series.

By Herb Clark.

Atlanta's biggest and best Dixie College baseball league series, Chapters I and II, will be written in deeds—indeed—on the Rose Bowl diamond at Georgia Tech this afternoon and Saturday, when Coach Frank Anderson brings his Oglethorpe Petrels in from the hinterlands of Peachtree road to play the Jackets in the first two of the four games set for the year.

The two slated this week-end open the annual clash for the city title. They open the Dixie loop warfare of the two old rivals. They are Tech's fifth and sixth engagements in the loop crown race, Oglethorpe's seventh and eighth.

PETREL RECORD.

Oglethorpe stepped off in the race some four days before the Jackets, and got away to a perfect start by taking both ends of the series with Georgia Tech. The Petrels next strayed into four serious affairs with the Auburn Tigers and were soundly trounced in three of the games. Which leaves the Petrels with a percentage of .500, the same being just good enough for third place in the present standings. Auburn is on top with .533 and Florida trails at .750.

Between Oglethorpe and Tech are Georgia and Mercer, tied with .333 marks. Tech snapped off the mark with some semblance of promise, splitting with Mercer at Macon and coming close to taking the series. And then the Jackets dropped two games to Florida earlier this week and fell off to the bottom of the loop ladder.

The Oglethorpe series opens an eight-game stretch for Tech, eight games in nine days.

EITHER, OR.

And that, should Tech's hurlers rise to the occasion, is the opportunity of a lifetime to just climb and climb in the standings. Of course, should the task prove too much, as likely it will, college hurling staffs being what they are—opportunity will be knocking on the Jackets' collective heads. And blows in that portion of the anatomy have never been known to get anybody any way but down.

In any case, this present series is the one for which Coach Clay is pointing his charges—at the moment. It's sort of an "eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow it may rain" attitude.

Clay brought his men back from Florida in good shape and high spirits; Anderson and the Petrels returned from Auburn in the same fix.

Today they'll step on the diamond at the Rose Bowl about 4 o'clock and open the wars. "Cannonball" Baker, the sophomore speed merchant, is expected to be Coach Clay's pitching choice. The finger point seems to indicate Ray Walker, the Dixie Flyer, as Coach Anderson's nomination. Otherwise the lineups of both teams are expected to be as usual.

Both have good clubs. Both are ready to go.

Emory Swimmers To Receive Awards

The athletic council at Emory announced yesterday that eight varsity swimmers will be awarded major letters and that seven freshmen members of the swimming team will be given numerical letters for their work.

Members of the varsity squad who will receive the letters are Captain Art Merrill, Parks Hendee, Ben Shepard, Alan Davis, Joe Shuler, C. B. Shearer, C. B. Quillian, Willie Beavers, and William Quillian, manager.

Foster Fitz-Simmons, Bradford McFadden, Lester Kleiber, Carl Wesley, John Thompson, Levering Neely and Thomas Hooks are the freshmen who will receive numericals.

The varsity swimmers met teams from Georgia Tech, University of Georgia and Clemson during the past season besides swimming in the state meet at the Y. M. C. A. The freshmen swam against the Georgia Tech freshmen, Boys' High school, Tech High school and Georgia Military Academy.

Purple Track Stars Off for New Orleans

Four members of the Boys' High track team, in charge of Coach C. S. Ward, will leave the city early this night for New Orleans, La., where they will take part in the annual Tulane interscholastic relay Saturday afternoon. Harry Hall, Gilbert Stacy, Penton Cox and Charley Motz will make the trip. Hall will enter the 100-yard dash and the broad jump. Stacy will enter the pole vault and shot put events, and Cox and Motz will represent Boys' High in the mile runs.

In previous meets this season Boys' High placed third in the indoor event at Chapel Hill, was second in Charlotte and has defeated both Emory freshmen and G. M. A. in dual meets. Following the Tulane events, the Purples will compete with the Tech freshmen next Tuesday, the A. A. U. events Saturday, April 25, the Big Four meet May 1, the Boys' High interscholastic events May 8 and the Asheville, N. C., meet on May 15.

MURPHY JUNIORS WIN.

Murphy Junior-High won its fourth consecutive baseball game with a 13-to-2 victory over O'Keefe Juniors Wednesday afternoon on the O'Keefe diamond. Williams was the star of the victory for Murphy. He gave O'Keefe only two hits, and in four games has allowed only twelve safeties.

THE SPORTLIGHT

A McGraw-Hill Toast.

When I was just a little cuss I oftentimes had watched with awe— That great debating, umpire baiting, Devastating Jawn McGraw!

So lift your cups and liquidate To one of baseball's greatest great!

In passing years as I grew up, I heard some praise and some deplore That most pugnacious, but sagacious, Quite loquacious Jawn McGraw!

So lift your cups and celebrate The man who's won nine "flags" to date!

And, now his years are fifty-eight, He still commands a lot of awe— That pennant flying, no denying, Always trying Jawn McGraw!

So lift your cups and liquidate To one who's young at fifty-eight!

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 16.—Birmingham opened the home season here today, dropping their first game to Nashville, 7 to 3, before a crowd of 8,000. Mistead, Vol hurler, wavered in the first and second innings when he was hit for two runs, but tightened up behind sparkling fielding. Campbell was ineffective for two innings, but in the third he faced some better, giving up eight hits and two runs during the remainder of the contest.

LITTLE ROCK, April 16.—The Memphis Chickens in check today after losing twice in the first inning and the Travelers won their third consecutive game, 5 to 2.

Beaton opened the game with a single and was forced by Bell. Hamel hit a home run in the first inning and that accounted for the Memphis runs. In the following eight innings the Chicks got only five hits off Moore.

The Travelers scored a run in the first inning on a pass to Nicol and Ivy Griffin's double. Griffin drove in the second run after Moon had doubled in the third inning. Little Rock combined two singles, a double and a triple for three runs in the fifth inning.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—(AP)—Drawings for the University of Pennsylvania relay races to be held at Franklin field April 23 and 25, were announced today.

There are 100 events on the two days' program. Results of the drawings for some of the events resulted in the following order in the running:

Class B, One-Mile College Relay Championship: William and Mary, Northwestern, Army, Colgate, Columbia, M. I. T., Temple, C. C. of Detroit, Lehigh, Navy, Lafayette. 480-Yard Shuttle Hurdle: Dartmouth, New York, Navy, Ohio State.

Otto Dumas Signs With Traveler Club

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 6.—(AP)—Outfielder Otto Dumas, a familiar figure in the Southern association for several years, has agreed to terms offered him by the Little Rock baseball club, says Ray Winder business manager. Dumas will join the Travelers at Memphis Saturday. He has been a free agent.

Acquisition of Dumas will make it necessary for the club to get rid of one of the Class A players now on the roster. Winder said he had not decided who would go.

Army, Michigan State, Washington and Lee, Princeton, Yale. Other college mile relays, No. 1: LaSalle, Morgan, Gallaudet, Lincoln. St. Joseph's, Villanova, North Carolina A. & T., Howard.

'Bonesetter' Reese Is Seriously Sick

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 16.—(AP)—John D. Reese, 75, known throughout the baseball world as "Bonesetter" Reese, was seriously ill at his home here today.

During the past many years Reese has saved the careers of hundreds of athletes by his uncanny ability to "fix" sore muscles and joints which failed to improve under treatment of others.

SNOW

The FACIAL Depilatory

The only hair remover applied swiftly and easily with a brush. Just lay it on and take it off. $1.00 package lasts from one to two months.

MILLIONS SOLD ABROAD

Not a harsh chemical that eats off the hair. But a gentle compound that makes the beard so brittle it "breaks" off. Men who very tender skins now actually enjoy their morning grooming which, by the way, may now be performed at night, because the beard barely grows overnight. In contrast with razor-shaving SNOW greatly steeps up the growth of the beard and makes it much lighter, thinner and softer. Endorsed by European authorities as perfectly harmless. Silver Medal Winner at Strasbourg, France.

Sold by Jacobs Pharmacists and Other First-Class Toilet Goods Dealers.

Rosoff Corp. of America, 230 Broadway, New York, N. Y., Dept. 80.

Please send a large box of SNOW and a special fibre brush. I enclose $1.00 (or I will pay $1.15 on delivery). You are to refund the full cost if for any reason I am not delighted with the results.

REAL NATURAL

Daviscourt and Sauer Promise Battle; Paxos Meets Marvin.

Occasionally promoters land a "natural." That is a show that everyone wants to see, one that can't miss being good.

That is why tickets are already going at a fast clip for the meeting of Pete Sauer (Ray Steele) and Dick Daviscourt next Tuesday night in a wrestling match at the auditorium.

Pete Sauer, who wrestled here as "The Masked Marvel" some years ago, is one of the best heavyweights in the game today and the man picked as the most logical successor to Jim London, the present champion.

Sauer, who took the name of Ray Steele to hide his identity from his family who objected to his wrestling, will meet one of the real tough boys in Dick Daviscourt, the big h-be-man whom Atlanta fans love to "chuck."

The match is a sure bet of action all the way. The two will meet in the two-hour feature. The match Tuesday night will not Wednesday as announced yesterday.

The match is a supersort of match Paxos and Tom Marvin together in a one-hour limit match. Paxos and Marvin are another great pair to see. Marvin, the tough Indian grapple, who introduced the chin lock to Atlanta last summer, is always a show. Paxos has won a wide following here. The Greek star is one of the finest physical specimens in the game and a smart wrestler.

Tickets will be on sale today at the usual places, the Piedmont Hatters and the Chandler, leading soda fountain. There is already a great demand for the pastebards. Fans can get the better ringside and reserve seats by buying tickets before the start of the match. Ladies will be admitted to any seat for $1.

GOUGH LIFTS CARNER BAN

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—The shackles were removed from the wrists of Primo Carnera by the New York state athletic commission today, and for the first time in a year, fistfighting was a freer affair.

The solemn ban lifted the suspension that has hung over the Italian giant since April 30, 1930, without a word of explanation, although everyone in town knew it was scheduled for today.

Carnera, back in good standing, now is free to fight Jack Sharkey or Jimmy Johnson at Ebbets field July 10 on a huge charity card, but Madison Square Garden insists that it has a prior lien on his services.

While Johnson is expected to announce definitely that he has closed the Carnera-Sharkey match, the Garden, on behalf of its Illinois subsidiary, already has served notice to all parties concerned that it holds a contract calling for Primo to fight not only the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling heavyweight title fight in Cleveland, but also the winner of the fight between the two prizefighters.

The hidden warfare between the commission and the Garden is due to break wide open as soon as the signing of Carnera for a rival match is announced. Since the Garden went ahead against the wishes of the commission and signed Max Schmeling for the Stribling fight, the commission has refused to sanction a Carnera-Sharkey fight.

The request that the Garden be forced to give Sharkey a return engagement, relations between the two organizations have become so strained that it will recognize no contract signed with Carnera during the period of his suspension and is ready to sanction a Carnera-Sharkey fight.

HIS LIFE STORY

In this series of 18 articles, of which this is the sixteenth, the great Notre Dame football coach, whose untimely death in an airplane accident March 31 shocked the nation, tells of the adventures and people he met in his eventful career from Voss, in Norway, to the middle western university which he helped to make famous. It is an exciting story—written by Rockne. The Constitution daily until it is completed. There will be much written about Rockne. This is Rockne's own story, written by Rockne.

By Knute Rockne.
INSTALLMENT 16.
LOOKING back over my career in football—not a long career, but it's permitted to say so, typical of the average American coach—it's filled with the thrills that ensue from the drama of the gridiron to exhilarate onlookers and give to the young and their elders the same heroic in times of peace that stir men quite as much, as to quite as important a cultural purpose, as the heroics of war.

The first big thrill that came to me in football was when I saw Chicago beat Michigan on Thanksgiving Day, 1905. The only score made was by Chicago, which won, 2-0, and that came when Catlin, Chicago end, threw Michigan back over the goal line for a safety. That is, it was a safety in those days; under the present rules it would not have been. However, this was not the high light of the game to me. It was my old hero, Walter Eckersall, who caused the chills to run up and down my spine, and whose remarkably daring play lives in my memory as heroism in action.

Chicago had the ball, third down, and Eckersall dropped back to kick. So close was the ball to his own goal line that Eckersall lined up behind it. The Michigan coach, who was blocking him, Michigan had been pressing Chicago hard, and the spectators sensed that a break was imminent. A strong wind blew against Eckersall. Everyone, including the Michigan team, figured he could do nothing but kick. Back went the ball to Eckersall. He made a slight move as if to kick, and then he went streaking around left end, circling the rushing Michigan end, who could not change his course. On up the field Eckersall went 35 yards—to safety as far as the Chicago team was concerned, for his next kick landed deep in Michigan territory. I hate to think of what would have happened had Eckersall been down for a safety. But why think of it? Here was daring, imagination, steady nerve and immediate execution.

I HAD a thrill of another kind in those early days when our Northwest Division high school team scrimmaged informally with the great North Division team in Chicago. Included in the North Division personnel was Walter Steffens, today a judge in Chicago and coach of Carnegie Tech.

If there was one thing I ever prided myself on it was my ability to tackle. At least 20 times that afternoon I left my feet with all the length I could muster and with arms outstretched, catapulted myself at Steffens, who was carrying the ball.

But it was just a dive into space with a dull thud as my body struck the ground. Steffens was there and he wasn't there. After the game was over, while in the locker room, I saw Steffens. He looked at me and said, "Nice tackling, boy. I had to step to keep you out of my way."

Several years later I saw this same Steffens, who had become one of the greatest of gridiron stars, in the second half of the game. In this game he was stopped dead by a great pair of ends as ever playing together on a football team. I refer to the fierce Sioux and the cunning Arapaho, Gardner and Exendine, who were playing for Pop Warner on Carlisle.

What a delight it was to see the field play under Pete Hauer's punts was as fine as I've ever seen—a thing of beauty. It was so good, in fact, that in the second half of the game I forgot to tackle. I was so busy watching Hauer's punting, and put three men on each of the ends to prevent the Indian going down to cover the kick.

The wily Hauer was alert. The next time he kicked he stood there with the ball for at least four seconds, while in the meantime Gardner and Exendine had broken loose and streaked down the field with Chief. I was so busy watching Hauer's punting, and put three men on each of the ends to prevent the Indian going down to cover the kick.

The wily Hauer was alert. The next time he kicked he stood there with the ball for at least four seconds, while in the meantime Gardner and Exendine had broken loose and streaked down the field with Chief. Hauer's punting was a thing of beauty. It was so good, in fact, that in the second half of the game I forgot to tackle. box office, forming the old-time line to the right.

Early arrivals found the Crackers in batting practice. They also noted a strange sign on the center field green fence. It was an exhortation to buy season football tickets to Grant Field early. Old Georgia Tech evidently is going out after the business with a vim this year. It portends something, maybe.

Niehoff Enters.

While the Crackers were in the midst of their drill, peering freely under the sun, the Lookouts came by a stocky man with a crooked right leg. He was carrying a leather bag and wearing the number "11" on his shirt. The stands broke into cheers. It was Bert Niehoff himself, the old leader who had brought a pennant to Atlanta in 1925. Bert grinned and acknowledged the salute.

By Bill Key.
Radio Reporter.
GOOD MORNING, EVERYBODY!
Those of you who neglected to tune in Thursday on little Gloria Caruso, daughter of the great Metropolitan tenor, missed an interesting study in heritage and a marvelously developed voice, from what I hear. Gloria, who is only 21 years old, spoke Thursday night on the radio program to be sponsored by the American Child Health Association.

I didn't hear Gloria, but I'm going to try to listen to her for she is programmed to repeat her talk over the Columbia network, which WGST will bring in at 4:45. This afternoon, Mrs. Brotherton Bullard (or maybe you know her better as "Marge" White, one of the charming "Two Shades of Blue" informers) will tell Gloria's broadcast Thursday reveals a highly developed voice.

"MRS. CARUSO has a wonderful voice herself," the particular shade of Blue told me. "But Gloria sounds like a 'grown-up' woman. And no wonder, perhaps, for the daughter of Caruso is only a few minutes from the family home, but she has a most beautiful voice."

"In five more years her vocal training will begin and in the meantime she will study a long and hard piano. It looks like opera for Gloria."

At 10 o'clock this morning Walter Damrosch will conduct a balm of Music Appreciation courses, this entertaining diversion, which will find an American National Broadcasting Company, through WSB.

The concluding programs, which have proved so valuable to Americans generally, will in reality be a review of compositions rendered earlier in the series. A feature of this broadcast will be a long and hard piano. It looks like opera for Gloria."

It has been suggested that in the listed programs above, stars Frank, Gus, Wilson, formerly of the "Hell-King" "Joy Twins" at WGST, and in the office Thursday, passing through. Frank or Gus, as you know him better, is going up home way to join the staff of WFDV, under the new ownership of Walt Dobbin, former manager of WGST.

At 8:30 tonight the National Broadcasting Company's weekly presentation of the Armour program will offer a variety of talent. Among those whom you may hear are Ruth Lyon, soprano; Lillian Knowles, contralto; a male quartet, and a trumpet trio. The program will be a review of the "Old Man River" type, made popular or revived by the noted half-chant of the composition of that name in which Edna Ferber's "Show Boat."

MISS HOLM RETAINS Swimming Crown
NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Eleanor Holm, of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, successfully defended her national championship in the 300-yard medley swim tonight when she won the opening event in the national women's indoor tournament from a field of five. Miss Holm's time was 4:22.4, some six seconds slower than her world record for the event.

Helene Madison, of Seattle, Wash., flashed to first place in the 100-yard free-style event, outdistancing her closest rival, Joseph McKim, of Los Angeles. The Seattle swimmer led the race in the last 100 yards, 1:03.2, she failed to better her own American record of one minute, two-fifths seconds.

Catherine Coleman, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, won the low board fancy diving contest.

BIG 10 HOCKEY.
With the completion of the $300,000 hockey rink at the University of Minnesota, the Big Ten will have four hockey teams. The others are Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

YALE ENTERS TOURNEY.
PINEBURST, N. C., April 2.—(UP)—The golf teams from Yale University, the varsity and freshman, and a complete varsity from Georgetown University, have arrived here for the annual united north and south golf tournament.

WHAT SCORE?
FITZGERALD, Ga., April 4.—The Fitzgerald High school team defeated Tifton High on the local diamond Friday with a score of 32 to 0.

Borah Secures Job For Youth in Russia
WASHINGTON, April 16.—(UP)—Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, advocate of Russian recognition, today said he has done his bit to aid the unemployment situation. A young New York engineer, who has been out of a job for six months, asked him to get him a job in Russia, Borah said. The senator sent the engineer to an acquaintance in New York who placed him at once on a soviet engineering enterprise.

Borah said the salary was "substantial."

Borah recently used his acquaintance with soviet trade representatives here to obtain a reversal of Moscow's refusal to allow two young aviators to fly over Russia in a round-the-world flight.

DEBATORS DEFEAT ALABAMA

Local University Wins
Decision on Free Trade; Tech Meets N. Y. U. Tonight.

Upholding the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, That the Nations Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade," Emory University's debating team Thursday night won a 2-1 decision over their rivals from the University of Alabama before a large and appreciative audience in the theology chapel.

Speakers for Emory were David Porter and Harlow Branch, Jr., while George Mack Siedman and John Foster argued in the negative for Alabama. Dr. Theodore H. Jack, of Emory, himself graduate of the Tusculum university, presided; while Reuben R. Arnold and John A. Sibley, prominent Atlanta attorneys, together with Julian Harbo of the Constitution, acted as judges.

David Porter, Emory's first speaker, created some confusion in the minds of the audience as to the exact terms of the subject for debate when he stated that the affirmative did not wish to go on record as favoring free trade, in the broadest sense, but intended to advocate a tariff levied exclusively for revenue. In accordance with an agreement as to the interpretation of the subject, reached by both sides prior to the debate, the discussion was conducted on the basis stated by Porter.

While all the speakers showed poise and high debating ability, coming to the contest thoroughly armed with quotations and statistics, it was the consensus of the judges that Porter, for Emory, and Foster, for Alabama, made the ablest addresses, with Branch, of Emory, excelling in rebuttal. The last named, at one stage of his address, made a telling point with a quotation for the late Senator Charles McNamara, of Alabama, who declared that political corruption invariably accompanied a protective tariff.

GEORGIA TECH TEAM MEETS N. Y. U. TONIGHT

Debating teams of New York University and Georgia Tech will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of the Tech Y. M. C. A. to discuss the question: "Resolved, That the Several States Should Enact Legislation Providing for Compulsory Unemployment Insurance to Which the Employer Shall Contribute."

New York University, to be represented by Bernard Strauss and Abraham Taler, will have the affirmative side of this proposition, while Tech, with Russell Brook and Furman Smith scheduled to speak, will maintain the negative. Dean E. W. Knox will preside, and E. Smythe Gambrell will act as critic-judge.

This will mark the fourth time this season that Tech has debated practically the same question, sometimes favoring the affirmative and sometimes the negative. Victories were scored over North Carolina and Penn State here, and over Tulane University in New Orleans.

NEW OUTBREAKS EXPECTED IN INDIA

BY JAMES A. MILLS.

BOMBAY, April 16.—(P)—Renewal of the struggle of the Hindu nationalists against British rule in a more drastic and widespread form was predicted today by Vallabhai Patel, intransigent president of the Indian national congress. At the same time Lord Irwin, retiring British viceroy, was making a speech expressing complete faith in the Delhi pact as a foundation for permanent peace.

Declaring the government had not only failed to fulfill the terms of the pact, but deliberately incited others to observe it, Patel started his listeners by saying that the future fight of the nationalists would be of a kind unknown in history, in its intensity and results.

"Those who are afraid of death on the gallows," Patel shouted, "should resist to foreign countries and dispose of their property. In the next fight you will have to face bullets and the gallows. You can win independence only by giving your lives. It is better for you to remain naked than to wear foreign cloth. You must not be deceived by the Delhi treaty; it is only temporary and gives us the possibility of strengthening our forces and determining our future policy."

Hearing of Patel's provocative utterances and Gandhi's continued counsel to members of the congress not to relax their fight, Lord Irwin, addressing the Bombay National Congress Association, warned that such a bellicose spirit would wreck all chances of peace.

"I deeply regret the tendency to regard the immediate future as a period of truce which advantage may be taken to reorganize the forces for future struggle," he said, "because the state of mind such a temporary respite is not only inconsistent with a whole-hearted discharge of the obligations the settlement proposes, but it contains within it dangerous germs of trouble."

"It is a continuous menace to the peace which was our intention, and which it remains my dearest desire to see established. On the other hand, it arouses forces which those who call them into being may find it difficult to control. On the other, it necessarily imposes upon the government the duty of preparing for counter action, and I fully recognize that the discharge of this duty must, inevitably, in its turn, breed distrust."

Extraordinary precautions are being taken to guard the life of the viceroy. The train which brought him from Delhi on only during daylight hours so as to frustrate possible bomb throwers. Bombay is swarming with detective secret service men and additional military police. Not only to insure a safe exit to Lord Irwin, who leaves for England Saturday, but a safe entry to Lord Willingdon, the new viceroy, who is due Saturday morning.

TULSA AIRPORT SETS NEW WORLD'S RECORD

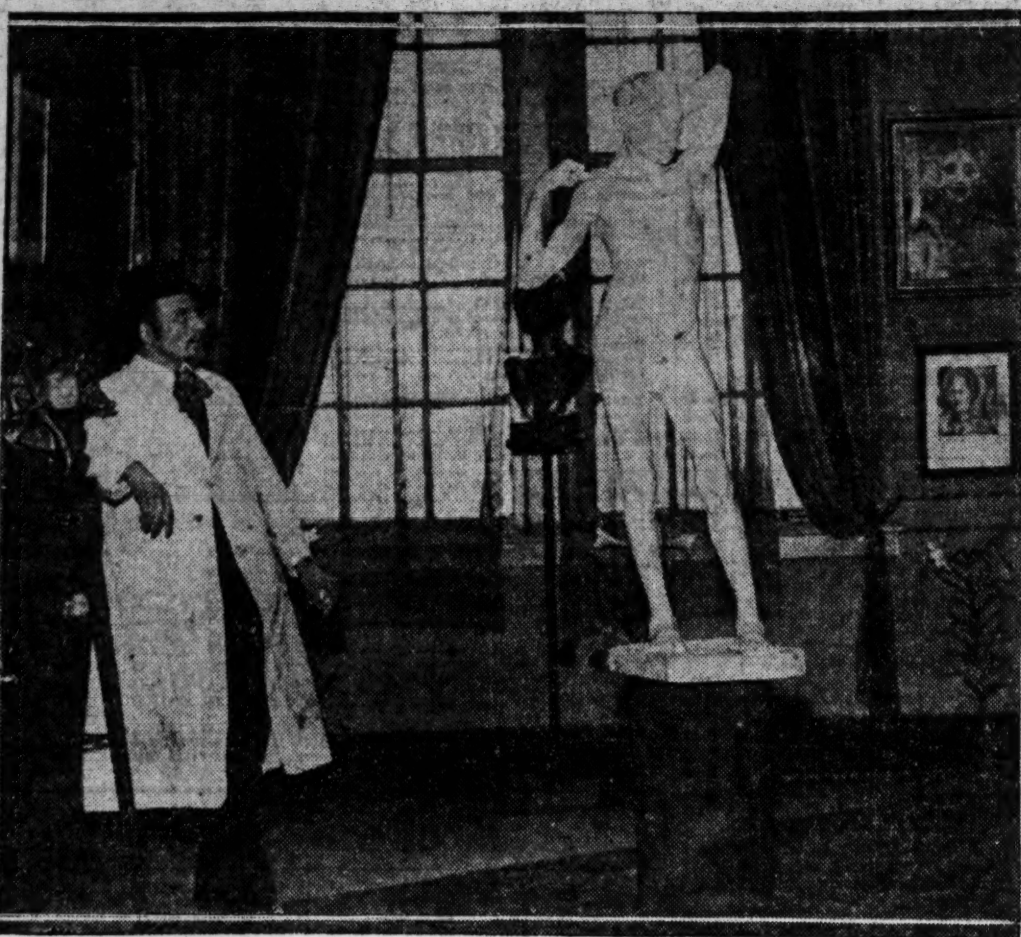

TULSA, Okla.—(UP)—The world's busiest airport lies in the heart of America, the municipal airport of Tulsa.

In the second year of its existence, 1930, it surpassed any port in the world in handling the greatest volume of aerial traffic, records shown.

On its busiest single day in that year 691 passengers passed through its gates, and in its busiest month, last June, it accommodated 11,009 passengers.

More than 60,000 planes have come and gone from its runways, although the port will not be three years old until July, 1931.

German Sculptor Exhibits Work at Flower Show

Dr. Joseph Klein, sculptor of Munich, Germany, and a resident of Atlanta for the past year, photographed with one of his sculptural works, "Youth Awakening," included in his exhibition this week at the city auditorium, in connection with the annual flower show. The exhibition also includes sketches, besides portraits and landscapes in oil.

RULERS OF SIAM TO ARRIVE TODAY

VICTORIA, B. C., April 16.—(P)—The king of Siam, an absolute monarch, but also a sick man trying to get well, will arrive here tomorrow with his consort, Queen Rambhai, aboard the liner Empress of Japan.

A message from the liner said the king was ill. The nature of his illness was not disclosed, but it was not believed to be serious. Plans for entertainment here were cancelled.

The couple is traveling incognito as their royal highnesses, the Prince and Princess of Sukhothai, on a visit to the United States in which King Prajadhipok seeks to regain his normal eyesight by removal of a cataract.

They will travel in private railway cars by way of Minnesota's Twin Cities and Chicago to New York, at which they probably will arrive April 22.

For two days the king will discard his incognito in Washington, D. C., where he will be received as the absolute ruler of a territory as large as Spain and Portugal combined, with 11,000,000 subjects, but at the king's request all pomp and parades will be omitted.

W. J. M. Watson-Armstrong, consul general in Canada for Siam, said his only official act on the Pacific coast would be to receive Chief Justice MacDonald, acting lieutenant governor of Canada, upon the ship's arrival.

A tentative program including a visit to the White House by the king upon his arrival in Washington, a return call by President Hoover and a state banquet at the White House has been submitted by the state department.

Before his Washington visit the king will rest a few days at the home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid on Long Island. From Washington he will go to Baltimore for an examination by Dr. William Holland Wilmer, eye specialist.

An operation for cataract which has temporarily blinded the king's left eye and is causing the right eye to fail, will be performed by Dr. John Wheeler, New York specialist.

After another rest on Long Island until the latter part of July, the king will make a six-week tour of Canada, spending much time in the Rockies near Banff.

MADRID, April 16.—(P)—When King Alfonso and his family fled from Spain yesterday, the Infanta Isabelle, 30-year-old princess of the blood, who once before saw a Spanish throne fall, was left in her private palace to learn of the latest royal debacle through her servants.

The Infanta, aunt of King Alfonso, learned of the royal family's hasty departure only last night.

Alfonso, it was said, refused to bid her farewell because she was ill and because of the suffering the news would bring her. That the republicans would not harm the sick princess seemed to have been confidently believed by the royal suite.

But the din in the street outside her Quintana avenue palace aroused the Infanta's curiosity. She demanded to know the cause for all the furor. When she was told she resolutely set about preparing for her own departure. The last time she left Spain was when her mother, Queen Isabelle, was dethroned in the 70's.

SECRET DEALS BARED
IN TENNESSEE PROBE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—(P)—Testimony that specifications announced by the state purchasing department were sometimes "vague" and that a contract for highway signs, of which "thousands and thousands" have been bought, was let without competitive bidding was heard by the legislative investigating committee today.

Louis Allen, a salesman, testified that the late A. D. Curtis, purchasing agent, had explained that the reason Allen's firm had not been permitted to bid on the sign contract was because "pressure had been brought to bear on him from the outside" and he would have to give it to the Tennessee Enamel Company.

As he recalled, Curtis told him the "pressure" was exerted by "Mr. Green," Tom Green, Shelbyville attorney, is regarded as a strong political factor and Allen "supposed" Curtis referred to him.

"Isn't it your understanding that Mr. Green is really the purchasing department of the state?" asked George L. Stockton of the committee, but Allen replied: "No sir, I wouldn't say that."

James Riddle, who a year ago was a salesman of trucks, related that Luke Lea, Jr., had promised to "do all in his power" to have the state purchase two from his concern when Riddle explained that payment of a full page advertisement in the Nashville Tennessean of which Lea is vice president was contingent upon his getting this business.

The advertisement was published the following Sunday, but Riddle said he failed to land the order and finally Lea, Jr., said he would pay for the ad himself. It amounted to $315.

Meanwhile, several statements had been received by the truck firm, which had Riddle make an affidavit about the matter in event of a suit.

This affidavit, read into the record, stated that an agreement had been reached between Riddle and Lea, Jr., whereby the latter "guaranteed the sale to the state of two trucks for the consideration of the insertion of a full page advertisement of said make of trucks in the Nashville Tennessean" and that it was understood between the two that "no charge would be made for the insertion of said advertisement unless said two trucks were sold to the state."

WALKER'S ANSWER TO CHARGES READY

NEW YORK, April 16.—(P)—Mayor Walker said today he expected to have his answer to charges filed against him by the city affairs committee ready by Saturday.

They will be taken to the governor in Albany in printed form either by Charles F. Kerrigan, his assistant, or Thomas F. McAndrews, his secretary. The mayor denied a published report that he was up late last night preparing the answer. He said he is writing the document between other mayoral duties, being careful not to neglect the latter.

After consideration of the mayor's answer the governor is expected to decide whether to dismiss the charges or to appoint a commissioner to investigate them.

The charges were filed a month ago while the mayor was in California on vacation. The governor forwarded them to him there and requested they be answered after his return to New York.

CHILDREN ARE WARNED AGAINST BALL CHASING

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(UP)—One of the most frequent causes of traffic accidents to children at play—a sudden dash into the street to retrieve a ball—is the subject of this month's safety lesson and poster adopted by the public safety department of the California State Automobile Association.

U. S. TAKES A HAND IN CALDWELL CASE

Department of Justice
Asks Right to Examine Bank's Books.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—(P)—The United States department of justice today had a representative in Nashville seeking access to the books of Caldwell and Company, collapsed investment banking house, with a view to instituting criminal proceedings against "certain officers" of the company.

United States District Judge John J. Gore heard arguments on a petition seeking access to certain records for the department of justice representative. The judge said he probably would make known his decision Saturday.

Gore heard arguments on a petition seeking access to certain records for the department of justice representative. The judge said he probably would make known his decision Saturday.

United States District Attorney A. V. McLane, during arguments on the petition, said the justice agent was here and the district attorney specified certain transactions in connection with the National Bank of Kentucky as among those on which information was sought to bring prosecution against "certain" Caldwell officers.

The district attorney declined to divulge the name of the agent and the identity of the Caldwell officials against whom the proposed proceedings may be directed.

Caldwell & Company was placed in receivership by Judge Gore last fall. The request for access to the books was first made in a letter from the department of justice to the Caldwell receivers.

The receivers sought instructions from the judge, and the argument was not on a formal petition as usually presented in court but by consent of attorneys, the letter was considered as a petition and argument was on it.

CALDWELL NAMED IN TENNESSEE SUIT
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—(P)—Roger Caldwell, Nashville financier, a defendant in the suit of the state to collect $252,000 state highway funds alleged to have been deposited in the Holston Trust Company today filed an answer in chancery court denying all liability on a $500,000 surety bond he is alleged to have signed protecting state funds.

A pro confessor judgment in the suit was taken against Caldwell recently, but through the permission of the state's counsel this was withdrawn and Caldwell allowed to file an answer.

He denied all liability until all assets of the Holston Trust Company are at least exhausted.

URIBURU TO NAME CABINET TODAY

BUENOS AIRES, April 16.—(P)—President Urriburu, whose cabinet resigned yesterday, said in a formal statement today that the necessity for forming a new government is not a circumstance which should disturb the nation.

"Results of the elections in Buenos Aires province," he said, "while they have not yet been completely tabulated, reveal a close race. Whatever the outcome the will of the voters will be respected by the government. The cabinet resignation does not constitute a governmental crisis and by tomorrow a new cabinet will be formed."

As the count of ballots proceeded today the radicals maintained a lead of approximately 4,000 over the conservatives.

BERMAN AIDS KEY IN GAS RATE FIGHT

Councilman To Ask Committee To Attend Hearing Before Commission.

Council support of Mayor James I. Key's protest against any raise in gas rates of the borough was assured Thursday when Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, declared he would offer resolutions establishing a committee to appear May 6 before the Georgia public service commission at a hearing on a petition of the Atlanta Gas Light Company for a revised rate.

In addition Berman will seek funds to employ rate and appraisal experts in an effort to show that the company is now receiving a "fair return on its investment."

A schedule of the rates which the company seeks has not yet been filed, and R. C. Hoffman, Jr., vice president of the company, stated Thursday that the petition does not necessarily mean that an advance in rate is sought.

"We want to sell more gas," Mr. Hoffman said. "That is our case in a nutshell. It does not necessarily mean that we want to increase the present rates."

Berman also stated he may offer a measure at the council session Monday asking the Georgia legislature to empower the council of the borough to employ rate and appraisal experts in an effort to show that the company is now receiving a "fair return on its investment."

MENTALIST TO ANSWER QUESTIONS AT RIALTO

Starting tomorrow, the Rialto theater offers a special attraction in Professor Edwards, world-famous mentalist and psychologist, who will appear afternoons and evenings all week to answer any questions put to him by the audience. For those who wish private readings, Professor Edwards will have a booth on the mezzanine floor, and will meet patrons between performances. The management offers the services of this noted psychic without any added charge to its patrons.

Professor Edwards does not claim to possess any supernatural powers, but relies solely on psychic intuition, or the projection of the subconscious mind into the conscious mind, and his ability to give accurate answers to the most perplexing questions is said to be uncanny.

What the Market Did

Thursday, April 16

Number of advances 133

Number of declines 447

Stocks unchanged 123

Total issues traded 703 683

BY JOHN L. COOLEY

NEW YORK, April 16.—(P)—

A quiet decline in stocks was interrupted by sluggish rallies today but although the movement as a whole was much narrower than yesterday closing prices were lower. Total shares approximated 2,300,000.

The market was governed rather closely by United States Steel common, which bobbed about erratically.

It made a new low since 1927 when the 40 per cent stock dividend was declared, almost recovered its loss and then sold off in the final dealings to close at 132, down 1-8.

The day's minimum was 131 3/4.

General Electric, American Telephone, American Can and Westinghouse were fractionally lower most of the day, although a break toward the close and low 2 points net. General Motors received assistance from the March sales statement, while

Bethlehem Steel acted much better than in recent sessions.

Ralls weakened into new low ground; Southern railway preferred

sold at the lowest since 1925.

The best of the several rallies came in the last hour when a representative assortment of stocks made up their losses, only to turn down again

under the influence of the afternoon money market. The call rate on the stock exchange went to 2 per cent. The $27-

000,000 gain in brokers' loans, although coming in a week earlier, was priced averaged slightly higher, was attributed in some measure to borrowing for state income tax payments.

Business news of the day was meager. Steel scrap prices at Pittsburgh weakened, and first quarter earnings reports, mostly by companies of secondary importance, were largely unfavorable in their relation to a year ago. An exception was General Motors, which earned its dividend with a comfortable margin in the three months.

Late wheat deliveries firmed but there was some irregularity in earlier months. Changes in corn were nominal. Cotton showed improvement

the past two or three days, closing 2 points higher to 3 lower.

The Argentine peso slumped with the change in government and Spain's peseta lost a considerable portion of yesterday's gain on the reported statement of her finance minister that the inflationary currency was to be devalued. Other foreign currencies were dull.

'Joe,' German Police Puppy, Center of Court Case Today

"Joe," object of court battle, wonders what it's all about.

Possessed with a vague idea that something is wrong, but unconscious of the real meaning of the legal battle raised over his ownership, "Joe," an 8-month-old German police dog, will hold the center of the stage this morning in Judge Luther Z. Rosser's division of municipal court of Atlanta.

Inbued with the sole thought of keeping folks from stepping on him in the push and crush of a courtroom, the puppy was in court Thursday awaiting the call of his case, but it was decided to hold the hearing today.

The action was instituted by Mrs. Mary Ellington, who brought a bill to recover against Miss Sara Spier, seeking possession of the dog, and Mr. Douglas answered an assault and battery charge preferred by M. K. Spier, head of a day cleaning establishment at 64 Third street, N. W. The charge was dismissed.

Miss Spier, according to her lawyers, J. D. Thomas and Cliff Thomas, contends that the puppy originally was hers and that it was taken from her by someone.

Mrs. Ellington, according to her lawyers, Sam Murrell and Kenneth Murrell, claims that the dog was given to her by a friend when it was a month old and that she has raised it since.

When Edgar J. Douglas, of 579 Ashby street, S. W., father of Mrs. Ellington, had the puppy out for a stroll, and met Miss Spier. As the result of the meeting, Miss Spier retained possession of the dog, and Mr. Douglas answered an assault and battery charge preferred by M. K. Spier, head of a day cleaning establishment at 64 Third street, N. W. The charge was dismissed.

Spier, head of a day cleaning establishment at 64 Third street, N. W. The charge was dismissed.

Miss Spier, according to her lawyers, J. D. Thomas and Cliff Thomas, contends that the puppy originally was hers and that it was taken from her by someone.

Mrs. Ellington, according to her lawyers, Sam Murrell and Kenneth Murrell, claims that the dog was given to her by a friend when it was a month old and that she has raised it since.

When Edgar J. Douglas, of 579 Ashby street, S. W., father of Mrs. Ellington, had the puppy out for a stroll, and met Miss Spier. As the result of the meeting, Miss Spier retained possession of the dog, and Mr. Douglas answered an assault and battery charge preferred by M. K. Spier, head of a day cleaning establishment at 64 Third street, N. W. The charge was dismissed.

Police Committee Orders War on Alleged Vice Here

Body Postpones Action on Police School Pending Study of Methods.

Whole-sale arrests to curb alleged "open vice and liquor peddling" and establishment of a school for training of Atlanta police officers were urged Thursday night as features of the regular session of the police committee meeting. Another important action was an announcement that Olaus Hewell will be the committee for selecting Jake Minak to death.

Alderman G. Everett Millican, member of the committee, declared he had conducted a personal survey of an alleged vice area and that he had been accosted several times. He charged that "purveyors of illicit traffic plied their trade openly and seemingly with impunity in the territory."

"I was challenged nine times in two blocks as I walked along the street," he said.

Chief of Police James L. Beavers ordered policemen shifted in that territory and declared that summary action will be taken in an effort to curtail activities in the area. The committee ordered the chief to begin at once enforcement of an ordinance barring produce trucks from the area when Millican charged trucks were "bringing in liquor and selling it brazenly in the streets."

Study School Plan. Alderman Alvin Richards, chairman of the committee, opened the discussion of the training school idea, which he said was a recommendation of the committee. He urged that the school be established at once.

Committee members are to acquaint themselves with the latest instructional methods and will outline a policy to be pursued by the time of the next session of the committee, April 30.

First proposal to establish the training school was made last November by The Constitution, when several leading law enforcement officers, including solicitors and prosecuting officials generally, urged such a school.

In the past, the department has given a limited number of instructions, but if preliminary plans, discussed Thursday night, are consummated, there will be regular courses in criminal law, psychology, preservation of evidence and latest approved methods of working up cases.

Hewell was freed by a jury in Fulton county superior court last week, but Richards declared he would force the committee if he himself was forced to present the charges.

Minak was killed in his Decatur street store, according to Hewell, as he advanced on the officer with a large butcher knife. Prosecution witnesses at the trial testified that the shooting was unnecessary and unwarranted, although Hewell contended he shot in self-defense.

Among other important actions of the police committee were the following:

1. Decision to leave with Chief Beavers and his lieutenants the amount of collateral required in traffic law violation cases. This was adopted as a compromise when Alderman Millican insisted that the Georgia legislature be asked to empower the borough to establish a separate traffic court where violators of minor traffic rules might enter guilty pleas and pay small fines. Millican said 90 per cent of the offenders go unpunished under the present system.

2. Reception of bills for receiving sets to be placed in police cars for operation of the police radio system. The bills were referred to radio experts at Georgia Tech for a recommendation. There were four bidders on the equipment.

3. Request that City Attorney James L. Mayson be asked for a ruling on whether or not pictures showing men hold private showings on Sundays, and also another covering all the laws regulating Sunday showings.

4. Order removing taxicabs from Alabama street between Broad and Forsyth streets because of traffic congestion in the area.

The committee denied a petition of Hewell for 102 days' pay he has lost since he was suspended in connection with the Minak case because of his conviction by the committee on a charge of drunkenness to which he pleaded guilty.
